

BOSTON BUSING PROTESTORS — The American flag is waved upside down as 3,000 persons attended an anti-busing rally at City Hall Plaza Sunday. The city goes into phase two of court ordered desegregation of Boston schools today. Six-hundred National Guardsmen have been called up in event they are needed to help keep order when the busing begins today. (UPI)

600 Guardsmen called out for Boston school opening

BOSTON (UPI) — A crowd of several hundred antibusing demonstrators tossed rocks and bottles at a building housing Massachusetts National Guardsmen Sunday only 10 hours before the second phase of court-ordered school desegregation was to begin.

One guardsman was struck and carried into the building on a stretcher but spokesmen later said no one was seriously injured.

Scattered incidents of rock throwing began Sunday evening when 600 guardsmen arrived at the Fargo Building on Summer St. on the edge of South Boston. Two persons were arrested.

Shortly after 10 p.m. the incidents began to increase and extra police were ordered into the area, police said.

Guards will ride Louisville buses

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Armed law enforcement officials will be aboard all school buses today when Jefferson County schools resume classes following a weekend in which the community was wracked by antibusing riots.

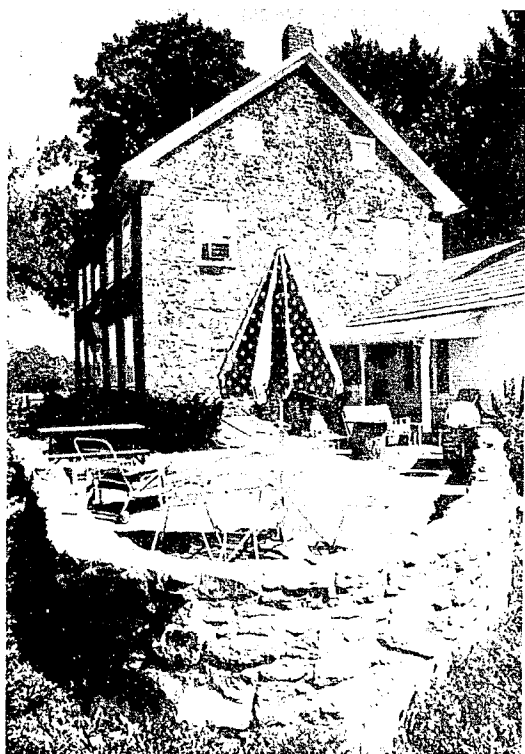

Local, state and federal officials announced Sunday that 570 city and state police, national guardsmen and U.S. marshals will be aboard the buses, while other law enforcement officials will stand guard at school buildings and along bus routes.

"All buses will be rolling today," said U. S. District Judge James F. Gordon in a statement read by U.S. Marshall Jesse Grider. Gordon met personally with some 500 bus drivers Sunday to outline the security procedures and to assure them all steps would be taken to maintain the safety of the buses.

Jefferson County attorney J. Bruce Miller told an evening news conference that only cash or property bonds would be accepted for persons arrested in the future and that all arrests would be prosecuted to the fullest extent.

Gov. Julian Carroll sent 925 national guardsmen into the troubled city early Saturday after violence Friday night and early Saturday in which 10,000 rioters battled with police near two suburban high schools.

An additional 125 arrests were made Saturday night and early Sunday to prevent disorderly mobs from forming, bringing to over 400 the number of arrests made since the nation's largest new desegregation busing system went into effect Thursday.

TEST OF TIME — Although changed in some details, the structure of the Hunsicker home in Hamilton Square remains unaltered. Rough stone blends the modern patio, and the frame addition has been extended with a slate roof to blend with the former shed kitchen.

A spokesman for the National Guard said several troopers were hit, but none were seriously hurt.

Mayor Kevin H. White asked for the riot-trained military police Sunday afternoon when the city's precise planning for a safe opening of schools today began to crumble under a police contract dispute.

While White, tieless in a blue blazer announced the mobilization of the guard, some 3,000 antibusing demonstrators staged an afternoon-long protest outside City Hall.

"We have two sacred words — 'resist' and 'never,'" called Virginia Sheehy, chairperson of ROAR (Restore Our Alienated Rights). The crowd called back: "Boston's on the war-path! Boston's on the war-path!"

Police Commissioner Robert

di Grazia said he did not believe the use of National Guard troops "will hamper us at all" if the soldiers are needed to replace policemen who call in sick.

The Guardsmen, carrying riot batons and flak vests but no firearms, moved in convoy Sunday afternoon from Camp Curtis Guild in nearby Wakefield to the Fargo Building in the center of Boston. White said a decision on whether to deploy the troops would be made early today when city officials "can determine what our own resources will be."

Their use depends on the number of police who call in sick today. A total of 258 reported in sick Sunday.

Di Grazia early Sunday ordered all 2,456 officers except those on vacation to be at their mobilization posts by 6:30 a.m.

FBI, Justice unit probe LCB enforcement branch

By United Press International

The FBI and the State Justice Department are conducting investigations into a major statewide scandal involving the entire enforcement arm of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board, according to published reports Sunday in the Pittsburgh Press and the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The papers quote sources close to the probe as saying that investigators have uncovered a pattern of state liquor agents extorting money from tavern owners in exchange for quashing violation reports.

An LCB source was quoted by the Inquirer as saying: "This is big. It's a major, statewide scandal."

According to the Press, the western Pennsylvania phase of the investigation could peak this week with the arrest of up to four local agents.

Sources close to the investigation said LCB officers are suspected of shaking down licensees for "money," "girls," and "other favors and gifts," the Press reported.

Sources also indicated the investigation would branch out to as few as seven or as many as 10 other districts in Pennsylvania, beginning in Philadelphia, the Press said.

Both newspapers said LCB Chairman Henry Kaplan initiated the state investigation last January when he assumed office.

Other treasures in Hunsicker home

No gold in old McCartie house

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of articles by Bobby Westbrook on some of the historical places in the area, the people who built them and how the years have changed them in a countdown through 1975 toward the Bicentennial year of 1776.)

By BOBBY WESTBROOK

HAMILTON SQUARE — They've never found the gold or silver to which Thomas McCartie and his heirs and assigns forever were granted the rights, according to the deed, hand-written on sheepskin, and dated March 4, 1789.

Even if there had been either of those precious metals, the deed specifies that "the fifth part of all Gold and Silver is for the use of the Commonwealth to be delivered at the Pitts Mouth clear of all charges."

However, the big stone house which is now the home of Edward and Jacqueline Hunsicker has produced its share of historical treasures. A pie plate made by an early owner in the county's most famous pottery he built across the street was purchased by the Duponts and has a place in Winterthur Museum.

Papers found under the floorboards of the attic when the Hunsickers were putting in insulation contain some of the records of a justice of the peace including one document on "the selling of the poor" which was part of the welfare system of the area in the early 1800's.

The house itself is one of the most massive in the county's treasury of old stone houses with many interesting features including a "funeral door," and a great barn which seems to be even earlier than the house itself.

It is located in Hamilton Square on Legislative Route

949, which was once the busy Belmont to Easton Turnpike and the house itself once served as hotel and stage coach stop. The road is little used now, since it ends in a dead end at the superhighway across the fields.

But to get back to the first recorded owner of the property, Thomas McCartie or McCarty as the name is later recorded. It is a name that is new to the custodians of the Monroe County Historical Society, and it may be that he didn't leave any heirs to carry on the name or be entitled to that non-existent gold and silver.

We do learn from the deed, however, that he purchased 253 acres of land in 1789, the deed citing surveys made on three earlier warrants, which may have been Penn grants.

The first warrant was to Henry Frank in 1746, the second to Conrad Pittenbender (obviously a corruption of Bittenbender) in 1746, and the third to the said Thomas McCartie in 1786.

We do know that he had a wife, Elizabeth, of whom he was either very proud or else wished to propitiate since the deed granted by the Commonwealth specified "the tract of land called 'Elizabethtown' situated in Hamilton Township, Northampton County."

We also know that he had given three quarters of an acre of land for a schoolhouse, although the name of the school can not be declared.

Among the neighboring land owners, according to the deed were Joseph Van Buskirk, Michael Sterner, Jacob Sensenbach, Christopher Frank, Melchior and Henry Buford (obviously Bussard, since the penman of that day wrote "s" with a long tail like an "f.")

Earthquake in Turkey kills more than 1,700

DIYARBAKIR, Turkey (UPI) — Officials said Sunday more than 1,700 persons were killed in the earthquake that jolted eastern Turkey Saturday, including at least 500 in the devastated town of Lice.

With communications cut to many outlying areas, rescue workers estimated that the final death toll would surpass 3,000, making it the nation's worst earthquake since 1939.

An official announcement in Ankara 24 hours after the quake said there were more than 1,700 confirmed dead, including 500 in Lice, 45 miles north of Diyarbakir, which bore the brunt of the earth shock.

Five hours later officials directing rescue operations on the spot told newsmen they estimated the total number of dead in Lice at 2,000.

"So far we have heard nothing from outlying villages. If 2,000 people died in Lice, you can imagine what fate has befallen the villagers," one official said. "We fear the worst but hope for the best."

Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel flew from Diyarbakir to Lice by helicopter and pledged the government would make good the township's financial losses.

Reporters who accompanied the prime minister said what was once a bustling town of 9,000 inhabitants was now a mass of rubble littered with dead and injured.

Military helicopters and cargo planes flew critically injured victims of the earthquake to hospitals in Ankara, Adana and Samsun.

Measuring 6.8 on the Richter scale, just below the "severe" 7-point mark, the quake struck at nighttime when most victims were at home for lunch or praying in mosques.

A late night tremor in eastern Turkey on Aug. 19, 1966, caught 2,529 victims asleep in their beds and an earthquake in 1939 killed 23,000 persons.

Rescue workers said only a handful of partly damaged buildings still stood in Lice, the quake's epicenter.

"We should have counted the living in order to know the real number of dead," one rescue team leader said.

All hospitals in the stricken areas overflowed with injured. Many lay on stretchers in hospital gardens and some in the streets.

Several thousand civilian volunteers and 1,000 Turkish soldiers wrestled with the debris in search for survivors but mostly found only mutilated corpses. Many of the collapsed buildings were simple two-story mud and brick homes of peasants.

Would-be assassin tells why

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme was described Sunday by one of her jailers as munching a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and explaining that she "had" to try to shoot President Ford because nobody was paying any attention to what she was saying.

The pint-sized, red-haired Miss Fromme, being held in an isolation cell in the Sacramento jail, was said to be in "good spirits."

Federal investigators, discounting "at this time" evidence of conspiracy in the alleged assassination attempt last Friday on the state capitol grounds here, were preparing to present Miss Fromme's case to a grand jury on Wednesday.

The case on charges already brought has been continued to Thursday.

A jailer told of a conversation with the 5-foot-tall Miss Fromme, who was wrestled to the ground by a Secret Service agent when she aimed a loaded Colt .45 at Ford.

"Well, you know," he quoted her, "when people around you treat you like a child and pay no attention to the things you say, you have to do something."

The petite, innocent-faced woman, nicknamed "Squeaky" because of her high-pitched voice, was kept alone in a cell without television surveillance, the jailer said. He said she was maintaining a vegetarian diet and turned down meat dishes.

"She's in good spirits. She had a peanut butter and jelly sandwich," he added.

K.C. to host Republicans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican site selection committee late Sunday voted unanimously to hold the GOP's presidential convention in Kansas City, Mo. next August.

All seven members of the committee voted for Kansas City after a three-hour closed session during which members closely questioned representatives of Kansas City and Cleveland, the last two contenders for the convention.

Congress sets sights on bigger pay hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress appears likely to reject President Ford's recommended 5 per cent pay raise for its members and other government workers in favor of a bigger, 8.6 per cent hike.

The Senate Civil Service Committee is expected next week to adopt a resolution disapproving the President's proposed 5 per cent raise for government workers. The Senate is expected to similarly reject the lower increase.

Committee Chairman Gale McGee, D-Wyo., told an AFL-CIO meeting Friday he will oppose Ford's recommendation

when the committee meets next Thursday.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott concedes "the chances are not good" for its passage. "Legislative reaction appears to me to lean toward the cost of living increase rather than the minimal 5 per cent," he said.

Congress has until Oct. 1 to reject the recommended pay raise for all government workers from Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, the Cabinet, the Supreme Court, members of Congress, federal judges and other top government officials on down to the lowest-paid file clerk. Otherwise, the 5 per cent hike would take effect.

What's news

Ford unwinds

WASHINGTON — Unwinding from the tensions of a two-day speaking tour and a brush with death, President Ford resumed play in a golf tournament Sunday and planned a return to the campaign trail later this week. The President skipped church and spent a cool, rainy morning doing paperwork in the White House. Despite the incident in Sacramento, Calif. — where a female disciple of Charles Manson aimed a loaded pistol at him from two-foot range — Ford will carry his person-to-person style of campaigning to three states this week.

Fromme's gun made in 1911

WASHINGTON — The .45-caliber gun which Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme pointed at President Ford in California last week was sold as government surplus more than 60 years ago, a Treasury Department official said Sunday. It was manufactured for the government by the Colt Firearms company in 1911, the year the Colt 45 — which became one of America's most popular sidearms — was developed, he said. "It was used in the Army for a period of time," said Rex D. Davis, director of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. Then the gun was sold as Army surplus in 1913. Davis said the National Firearms Tracing Center has not been able to track the gun's history after that, although it still may be possible to trace it further if Army records of the sale exist.

Bad news for ladies

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve Board will publish proposed regulations today that critics say would weaken equal credit guarantees for women. Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of the House consumer affairs subcommittee, promptly called the new proposals a "boondoggle" — and accused the Fed of "playing puppet for business interests who opposed passage of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act." The act was broadened last year because of complaints that women were not accorded equal status with men in seeking credit. But the proposed rules contain stipulations that would free banks and other creditors from the requirement of giving specific reasons for credit denial. If they are adopted, the creditor need only notify the applicant of the denial.

Month-long ride ends

LONG BRANCH, N.J. — Five of six teenagers, who rode a ferris wheel for nearly a month in the cause of charity, came down Sunday amid cheers and applause from waiting families and friends. The youngsters descended from the ride at the Long Branch amusement park at 3:20 p.m. EDT after completing 271,440 revolutions and traveling an equivalent of 570 miles in 29 days. Long Branch Mayor Henry Clorff presented the teenagers with a plaque, a trophy and checks. "You are all terrific kids. We are all very proud of you," he said. The record holders are Albert Koberlein, 16, Joey Della, 14, and Sharon Colfer, 14, all of Middletown, Bertha Euentes, 15, and Brian Shuski, 17, both of Long Branch and Shirley Brandle, 13, of Eatontown.

Lebanese escalate fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Bombs, rockets and mortars blazed across Tripoli Sunday as fighting between rival political factions escalated, culminating in a bus massacre and the burning down of a hospital. In Beirut, a late night bomb blast damaged a paper depot while another blast followed by machinegun fire ripped through a right-wing city suburb, police said. Premier Rashid Karami held emergency talks aimed at securing a ceasefire to the Tripoli fighting in which at least 29 persons were killed and 73 injured over the past 24 hours.

Female deacons ordained

WASHINGTON — Told they were engaged in a "prophetic act," four women deacons were ordained to the Episcopal priesthood Sunday in a service whose validity is questioned by church authorities. An applauding crowd of 1,000 jammed St. Stephen and the Incarnation Church to witness the service in which the four women and the Rt. Rev. George W. Barrett, retired bishop of the diocese of Rochester, N.Y., defied Washington Bishop William F. Creighton's request to postpone the service. Only hours before the ordination service, a pastoral letter from Creighton was read in Washington diocese churches, expressing his general support for women priests but requesting the churches to bar the women from their priestly functions.

Miss Black America crowned

GARY, Ind. — Miss Mississippi, 22-year-old Helen Ford, began her reign Sunday as the 1975 Miss Black America. Miss Ford, a 5-foot-6 Jackson State University student from Hattiesburg, Miss., won out over 28 other contestants Saturday night in the eighth annual all-black pageant before a capacity audience of about 2,000 at Gary West High School. First runnerup was Geraldine Fuller, 19, of Spartanburg, S.C., and the second runnerup was Cora Luwheat Brides, 19, of Winter Haven, Fla.

And on June 1, 1795, Thomas McCarty and his wife, Elizabeth, sold the land to Rudolph Drough.

If the name of McCarty has vanished from local history, the name of Drough, Anglicized to Trach, provides almost an embarrassment of riches.

He was the potter whose products were to become so famous, and his history was reported by Hamilton Township's most diligent historians, the late William S. Lesh, in the 1940's and most recently in Earl Robacker's monumental book on antique collecting, "Old Stuff in Up Country Pennsylvania."

Moreover, Rudolph Drough's daughter, Sarah Trach, was to marry John Keller, so the Trach family has a whole chapter in David Keller's book on "The Kellers of Hamilton Township."

Potting and Potters

"Monroe County has one outstanding name in the annals of early potting and pottery, Rudolph Drach," writes Dr. Robacker whose wife Ada Fenner Robacker is a descendant.

"According to the worn headstone in the churchyard at Hamilton Square, Rudolph was born in 1770 and died in 1842. The stone of his first wife, Magdalena is also there . . . and the account continues.

"Drach," he explains, "is generally considered the original spelling but in earlier references it may be 'Trough', and since it was a German name and as such subject to phonetic rather than historic treatment in a largely English-oriented world, other forms appeared.

'Trach' is one, 'Druck', a second. A West End village called Trachsville might well be the English equivalent of 'Drachstetel'."

Lesh takes the family history back to the "our" Rudolph Drach's grandfather, also Rudolph, who arrived in Philadelphia Aug. 29, 1730 on The Thistle. In 1763, Thomas and John Penn deeded to him a 300-acre tract in Bedminster Twp. Bucks County.

The land was divided between his sons, Henry and Adam, when Rudolph died in 1770, the same year that a grandson, "our" Rudolph was born.

Saga of a pie plate

Just when he came to Hamilton Twp. in what was then Northampton Co. is not certain but there are clues, not only in the 1795 deed but also in the fact that, a potter before he moved here, one of his deep pie plates of sgraffito pottery, is marked "Rudolph Drach, Bedminster Taunshib, 1792."

The famous Monroe County pie plate is signed and dated March 3, 1803. Moreover the Hamilton Church records show that Rudolph and his wife, Magdalena Wimmer Drach, were sponsors at the baptism of Lea Roth in 1809 so they were well-established in the neighborhood by then.

"Drach's massive stone house is still standing but has long ceased to be known by the family name. There is no sign at all of the pottery which stood across the road in what is now grown-up meadow land, although at every plowing shards and pieces do turn up" writes Robacker, a fact which the Hunsicker's can attest since their daughter, Sarah, has made quite a collection of those pieces.

In his article, Lesh gives quite a description of the Wintertur pie plate. It contained both the typical Pennsylvania Dutch tulip and bird, the distelfink, and its colors were yellow, chartreuse, green with a background brick red color.

The pie plate was discovered by Frank O. Smith of East Stroudsburg among dishes being discarded by Annie Veisley of Minisink Hills. Smith has exciting memories of its adventures between the time he bought it from her for $100 with a ten dollar commission from an antique dealer who said he had a commission to buy such a plate for $150, but which in reality was $750 to the DuPonts. The discovery led Smith indirectly to the acquaintance of the DuPont's and his yearly visits as their guest in Wintertur when it was still a private home with 40 servants, and promoted his career as an antique dealer.

What Rudolph Drach would have thought of all this, we can't imagine. He certainly didn't charge any such prices for his pie plates and pitchers. Incidentally, his great-granddaughter, Ada Robacker has recovered four examples of his work.

But he did make money as evidenced by his great barn, made without nails and with huge trees, complete with bark, which serve as beams, and his big house, details of which will be pictured later.

Better Pa. roads urged

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Fifteen business, industry and consumer organizations have united statewide in a campaign to pressure Pennsylvania lawmakers to provide more funds to avert a potential "catastrophe" in road construction and maintenance.

"I think we're talking about something which effects every single person in Pennsylvania," said Justin T. Horan, executive vice president of the Greater Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, one of the 15 participating organizations.

"Our road problems affect accidents, traffic delays, motorist inconveniences, the economy, transportation of goods, vehicle repairs, highway fatalities . . . dozens of things in so many ways," Horan said.

A recent cut in the 12-year Pennsylvania Department of Transportation budget has aroused the most criticism from the campaign's supporters. They say the $2 billion dollar loss, from $3.9 billion to $1.9 billion, threatens to make even more serious the future PennDOT financial plight.

A PennDOT announcement last week that no snow will be cleared from state roads this winter between 9 p.m. and 4 a.m. because of serious financial problems also elicited considerable criticism.

As part of the campaign for additional funding, an all-day meeting in behalf of the ad hoc Southwestern Pennsylvania Assembly on Highway Funding will be held Oct. 3 in Pittsburgh.

Efforts aimed at closing loopholes in law

War on rollover tax shelter set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional tax writers have declared war on the rollover, a system of pyramiding shelters used by the wealthy to lower or even escape income taxes.

The House Ways and Means Committee already has voted sharp limits on the use of real estate tax shelters, closing a potential billion dollar loophole. It plans to consider 20 tax reforms in all, most dealing with loopholes used by the wealthy.

The term "rollover" comes from the practice of rolling wealth over to a new tax shelter as the benefits provided by an old shelter expire, letting the tax avoidance — all legal — start anew.

Ways and Means is legisla-ing against the rollover in a tax-reform measure being prepared during six weeks of scheduled meetings.

The committee voted 24 to 10 last week for step-by-step limitation of real estate tax shelters, starting next year. Real estate has been a favored shelter for professionals, Hollywood people and executives with earned annual incomes of $100,000 or more.

That reform alone would take away an estimated quarter billion dollars worth of tax preferences for the wealthy in 1976. By 1980, when the measure became fully effective, those who have used real estate shelters would be paying $1 billion in additional taxes.

This week the committee

plans to look at other shelters involving oil drilling, motion picture ventures and cattle breeding and feeding. All are important to the rollover system.

The staff of the joint internal revenue committee says the total value of deductions allowed for the wealthy, low and middle income persons and corporations stands at $103.3 billion a year.

The rollover is particularly useful when a tax shelter provides for deferral of taxes, rather than outright tax forgiveness.

Deferral works this way: A taxpayer takes a quick depreciation on property in the early years of ownership so a paper loss can be shown for tax purposes.

Or this way:

A taxpayer writes off in one-year the full cost of cattle feed or certain oil drilling or vineyard development costs. Again, a paper loss can be shown.

In each case, the paper loss is used to offset taxes due on actual earnings. That, the joint committee said, "may significantly reduce the individual's tax liability."

But there comes a time when taxes are due on the shelter.

"Taxpayers in this situation have found it advantageous to invest in another tax shelter to provide a rollover or further deferral of taxes," a committee staff study explained.

How 'rollover' shelter works for taxpayers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Taxpayer "X" has a good thing going for him, according to the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation. By using four tax shelters — three in real estate and involving a farm — Taxpayer X paid only $1,200 in federal income taxes on an "economic" income totaling $448,000.

His income tax return was cited by the committee staff as one example of "how the wealthy use shelters to reduce their taxes."

The identity of Taxpayer X and details of his return are kept secret by law. But the staff has assured the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee that Taxpayer X is real.

The staff estimated his "economic" income by writing off his paper losses accumulated through the shelters. It said Taxpayer X joined a partnership tax shelter on December 28th, three days before his taxable year would have closed.

No effort was made to select Taxpayer X as an "extreme example," the staff said.

Here is the simplified version of the tax return of Taxpayer X prepared by the joint committee staff for the Ways and Means Committee:

Occupation: Executive. Wages and Salaries: $427,000. Dividends and interest: $4,000. Capital gains: zero. Partnership loss: $410,000. Other income: $16,000. Economic income: $447,000. Adjusted gross income: $37,000. Taxable income: $7,000. Income tax: $1,200. Tax as a per cent of economic income: 0.3 per cent.

Water shortage eases for many in Trenton, N.J.

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — The water shortage eased visibly in many homes in the Trenton area one week after taps went dry Sunday, but families in surrounding areas of higher elevation still had trouble in washing their dishes or clothes, officials said.

"The last report we had is the situation improved considerably in the Trenton area; but we still have trouble building up enough pressure to send water to families living on third or fourth floors of apartment buildings," a Civil Defense spokesman said.

He said the shortage was still serious in neighboring Lawrence and Hamilton townships, but predicted that normal service would probably resume by today.

Officials of surrounding townships conferred with city officials Sunday to demand that the water supply to some areas of Trenton be cut off or reduced to provide water to their municipalities.

The Civil Defense spokesman said three of the seven pumps were working Sunday, sending millions of gallons of water into the city water system.

He said the major problem is to fill the reservoir in order to build up enough pressure at pumping stations. The city has to pump 120 feet of water into the seven-acre reservoir to get the needed pressure at those pumping stations.

Although water pressure was increasing, residents were warned they could not drink directly from taps because the water was not pure.

They were told they would have to boil water for at least a week until normal pressure returned and water could be channeled through the filtration plant instead of directly into the system.

There were scattered incidents of water backing up in toilets and drains as pipes once again became filled.

But despite the crisis which began when the pumps broke down, a semblance of normal life returned to many of the families and businesses this weekend.

A popular local Italian restaurant did not have to use paper plates to serve dishes Saturday.

Americans want out of foreign involvement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford may think the Israel-Egyptian accord is the greatest achievement of this decade, but Americans by the hundreds are writing their senators to say "No!" to further U.S. involvement on foreign soil.

"Remember Vietnam? No Americans in the Middle East!" read one post card received last week by an East Coast Republican who serves on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

An informal UPI survey showed that postcard was typical of much mail received by committee members about the accord — a first step toward peace in the volatile Mideast that Ford has hailed as a great achievement.

Though mail on the subject thus far has been light, it indicated voters' back home are worried about a provision that American civilians will be used to man early-warning stations in the Sinai.

Letters are not running in favor of the pact in any of the offices of the Foreign Relations Committee members — who will have first crack at approving or rejecting the American role in supporting the agreement.

"It's a combination of Vietnam and the whole fear of sending Americans abroad," said an aide to Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. "Most people are queasy about things like that."

Striking miners vote to end crippling walkout

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — An end to a crippling month-old walkout loomed Sunday as local United Mine Workers leaders announced weekend votes by rank-and-file miners to return to their jobs in southern West Virginia.

The voting came after UMW President Arnold Miller met in Charleston last Friday with 200 local officers who passed a resolution directing miners to return to the pits.

In Logan County, where the wildcat strike started Aug. 11, Local 1302 President Roger Thompson said all area locals he had contacted had voted to report to work beginning this morning.

"Return to work, but if there are pickets out, return home," Thompson told a meeting of miners at Accoville. There was no indication whether picket lines would be set up by miners demanding the right to strike over local grievance issues. Two alleged leaders of that faction—Bruce Miller and Skip Delano—faced a federal court appearance in Charleston today to face contempt charges for ignoring back-to-work orders.

Thompson said he felt strikers had accomplished one of their goals—preventing coal operators from seeking injunctions to settle local disputes.

"We now have the respect of the courts, the companies and the international union," Thompson said, predicting that operators will in the future be more willing to resolve disputes at mine sites instead of in the courts.

The right-to-strike advocates, Thompson said, were "fighting a losing battle."

'Penny Candy Man' lives, reflecting a bygone era

By RUTH VINCE

Pocono Record Reporter

POCONO LAKE — A tiny bright-eyed girl entered Friendship House, immediately walked to a shiny clean glass case, put her finger to her chin and stared. Her mood was pensive — it was a difficult decision to make.

In her fist she clenched a dime, her tiny nose twitched from the smell of cinnamon, peppermint, and chocolate sticks, her eyes took in every delightful concoction that sets a child's mouth watering and belly moaning.

Finally, pointing to the many varieties before her she said, "I'll take one of those, one of them, and some of that."

That was 21 years ago, when the purchasing power of money, especially a nickel or dime, could buy a feast fit for a king.

Rudy Montbellier, better known as the Pocono Penny Candy Man said times haven't changed as far as kids coming in and buying candy.

"Today they come in with dollars instead of pennies," he said.

However, 21 years ago, according to Rudy, he could buy 150 varieties of penny candy, today, he said, "you are lucky if you can get 25."

Rudy and his wife, Martha, who is a secretary in the Pocono Mountain School District, have been running Friendship House in Pocono Lake since 1954 and young people from all over the area still come to purchase his penny candy.

Even though his stock has decreased Rudy still sells candy for a penny and some candy bars for a nickel.

When Rudy opened Friendship House he was the only person selling regular ice cream cones between Blakeslee Corners and Mount Pocono. But the penny candy counter was the most popular section in the place.

The candy case was loaded with chocolate cigars, bolsters (chocolate covered peanut butter crunch), little tin plates with spoon included to eat the cream candy, miniature wax bottles filled with nectar, chocolate kewpie dolls, jaw-breakers, watermelon slices and balls, and five cent candy bars that really amounted to something, about 10 good bites.

Today one cent can still buy the ever popular Tootsie Roll, every kids delight Bazooka bubble gum, red hot dollars, tangy bloopers, two for a penny candy cigarettes, chocolate, cherry, and licorice twizzlers, gum hats, and shoe strings.

Sitting prominently on the candy case are jars filled with goodies and in a corner is a penny gum ball machine.

But as Rudy put it, most kids today come in and buy dollars worth of penny candy. Just recently two young boys came in and spent $12 between them on penny candy.

They said they were "helping the economy and wanted to help their friend Rudy."

Young and old alike never miss the opportunity to visit Friendship House for penny candy, a very special egg cream, ice cream soda or sun-dae, or Rudy's special cole slaw, and good conversation.

Rudy, who will be 75 Sept. 30, is a pleasant reprieve for the many people who come to Friendship House.

Rudy said he has always thought of the little guy with only a few cents. That's why he hasn't raised the price of penny candy and still tries to get as many varieties as he can.

"I've always honored any amount the kids have, from one cent up," the congenial candy man said.

A snappy dresser, wearing slim suspenders and natty bow tie, Rudy can still bend and touch his toes without a grunt. He is known to every young person as a friend not a businessman.

Nothing confuses Rudy, he is very objective about himself. "If one isn't objective they can't take the disappointments that happen in everyone's life," he stressed.

He thinks only of the good, forgets the bad, and considers himself fortunate and very lucky.

A real sentimental guy, he takes all kids under his wing and treats them like his own. He has never been able to turn a youngster away from his candy case because they didn't have a penny.

"If the youngsters came into buy candy and one didn't have money, I always have a jar of Squirrel Nuts (penny candy) on the case that I give away. No kid goes out of my place without his piece of candy."

A native New Yorker, Rudy

came to Pocono Lake to vacation, fell in love with his Martha, married her 25 years ago, and started Friendship House.

"The name Friendship House was Martha's idea," Rudy said. "I was up on the roof one day helping put shingles in place when Martha called up to me and said 'let's call it Friendship House'."

"She said it was a good name because I was always greeting and talking to people," Rudy explained.

Prior to starting his business in Pocono Lake, Rudy was manager of Hills Restaurant in New York.

"When I opened Friendship House the specialty was penny candy," Rudy said. "I had prices anyone could afford, lower than others in the area."

"The locals told me I'd never make it. I told them to run their business and I'll run mine. I also told them in 10 years I'd still be here and they wouldn't. Well, I'm still here and they aren't."

His success could easily stem from what Martha said, "Because he is honest, extra friendly, likes kids, likes all people, and has given more away than he sold."

From penny candy to a full restaurant, where at one time the picnic grove at the rear of Friendship House was full of people waiting to get tables inside, Rudy has served people from "overalls to high-hats."

The lack of commercial advertising hasn't hurt the business that comes to Friendship House.

"Word of mouth has been our advertising," Martha said. "We used to keep a guest book, but it became too large," Rudy said. "When we kept the book we would send Christmas cards to all who signed."

"We have never discriminated, as long as our guests are nice people and keep a clean mouth, anyone is welcome in Friendship House."

The honest proprietor of Friendship House believes in giving the working man a break. "I'll not go up in my prices to any extreme and never will I deteriorate my product," he proudly said.

"Money shouldn't be hoarded, if you die someone else spends it," he remarked.

At Friendship House you can still buy a real ice cream cone for 20 cents, and the "best egg cream in town for 25 cents."

Rudy said he was the man who brought the egg cream to the Poconos.

"A group of vacationers came to Friendship House on tandem bikes from Readers," he explained. "They said they had tried to get egg creams elsewhere and no one knew how to make them."

"Well I did and from then on more and more people came asking for my egg creams and other business establishments soon started selling them."

"Egg creams were standard all over the world from about, I guess, 150 years ago. The original was chocolate, but I offered any flavor," Rudy said.

"I still make my own syrups that are used in all ice cream specialties. That's why I can still undersell anyone."

"I've had men who come to the Poconos for fishing and tell me they have come 20 miles out of their way to get one of 'Rudy's milkshakes'," he said.

"My banana splits are the real old fashioned kind, with all the trimmings and I use the whole banana too," he proudly stated.

Rudy's cole slaw recipe is his own secret. He has been asked for the recipe and has been asked to sell it commercially.

Rudy does his own cooking and until this year his mother-in-law, Dora Field, helped. "We retired her this year," Martha said.

Rudy said throughout his life he hasn't had any bad experiences. "Everything has been good," he stated.

He recalls in 1938, when he was at Hills, serving the King and Queen of England and their daughter Elizabeth, without being aware of it.

Even though they came in with a police lieutenant and several detectives to guard the doors and elevator, he still was not aware they were royalty until an officer outside told him.

"Since they said they were just in for a light snack before going to the Cotton Club in Harlem, I decided to show the man how to do the Harlem Jive," Rudy said.

"Then I asked if I could take the little girl around and introduce her to my crew. I even gave her a bag of cookies to take back to the Waldorf Astoria," he recalled.

"I guess that's the most important people I have ever served," Rudy remarked. "But I do recall meeting Lena Horn, Jimmy Durante, and Helen Hayes at Hills."

Meeting royalty was fine, but Rudy recalls one incident during the depression that will forever remain in his mind.

He was closing up around 3 a.m. and found a man looking into one of the 10 garbage cans in the alley.

"I told him to stop that and come inside, after he said he and his brother were starving. I gave him a bag of food, asked

West End Wanderings

Hamilton public hearing set

By MAUREEN RUFE

Pocono Record Reporter

BRODHEADSVILLE — The biggest meeting of this week is the public hearing the Hamilton Township Supervisors are holding on a proposed zoning ordinance.

It will be held at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, at the Hamilton School, so if you're interested in learning what zoning will do for you, that's the time to ask the questions.

If you'd like to take a peak at an ordinance before the meeting, the supervisors will have one available at their regular township meeting Monday night at the Sciota municipal building.

Residents have been examining the proposed legislation in various places in northern Hamilton Township, but we understand there was a little mix up and the copies of ordinances that were supposed to be placed in Sciota and Saylorsburg, didn't get there as early as they were supposed to. If you live in southern Hamilton and haven't seen the zoning ordinance, you can view it Monday night.

If the Hamilton Township Supervisors adopt the ordinance, the municipality will be the first township in the West End to have zoning.

There was a packed house at the regular meeting of the Monroe County Federation of Sportsmen meeting Thursday night at the Tobyhanna Firehouse. More than 200 residents including county commissioners, local judges and the like turned out for a special awards program for teenagers that attended the federation's first conservation camp last month.

The students received completion certificates from the federation, and award certificates from both the game and fish commissions.

The four top students at the camp, who received special trophies Thursday were Larry Lutz of Kunkletown, Julie Kaslik of Pocono Lake, Hans Von Milla of Bushkill and Doris Adams of Bangor. Von Milla received the outstanding achievement conservation trophy for receiving the highest test score at the conclusion of the week-long camp.

Retired game commissioner Ben K. Williams was the main speaker.

When you're a beautiful blond, you can take the bases in one of those Jacks N' Jills softball games on a motorcycle, especially if that stunning female happens to be club president Al McCabe of Readers.

During the Jacks N' Jills - Bell Telephone Ding-a-Lings softball game Tuesday night, Al came dressed up as a blond with an outfit that consisted of nylon stockings, panties, bra, blond wig and you name it. According to club rules, Al was required to dress as a woman as part of initiation ceremonies and had put off the experience until the Tuesday game.

After he made the bases on the back of a motorcycle, he officially became the club president. Ten minutes later, however, Al found himself in the group's portable jail for saying a "cuss" word or two at the game. Incidentally, the Jacks N' Jills won the game by a score of 16-12.

There's been talk about possible upcoming games with the Ambers Club and the Roadway terminal team, but nothing is definite yet.

The Pocono Cooners will hold their next regular meeting at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 12, at the Blue Ridge-Cherry Valley Rod and Gun Club. The club is training members to serve as judges for a big all-day and night coon hunt and treeing contest to be held in Monroe County on October 18. If you enjoyed the coon dog trails Sunday, you're bound to be in for a treat at the October meet. We'll keep you posted on the activities.

And speaking of the Jacks N' Jills, the group is still running a poster contest for local children. The children are to design an appropriate flag for the club using bicentennial themes, incorporating local aspects of Jackson Township. The posters can be submitted at the group's two meetings this month at 8 p.m. Sept. 9 or at 8 p.m., Sept. 23. The winning poster will become the club's official flag.

That balloonist that landed in Saylorsburg this week and caused quite a stir, made a practice run through the area the Saturday before Labor Day, and we understand almost tore his balloon when he tried a landing in the barn yard of Hamilton Supervisor Ray Mackes.

Word has it that a gift shop is going to be built across from the Pocono View Motel in Sciota in the near future. The ground has already been broken for the new shop.

The next meeting of the Blue Ridge-Cherry Valley Rod and Gun Club will be held at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 26 at the clubhouse in Hamilton Square. Officers will be elected for the coming year. The new annual dues will begin with the September meeting.

Kids really enjoyed being on Paul Strauss's Little League team in Jackson Township this year. We understand when there was a big win, the good-natured Strauss wheeled around in his 12-passenger antique limo and picked up the entire team for a free ice cream cone.

U.S. criminal code bill threatens freedom of press

Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Under a bill pending in the Judiciary Committees of Congress, a reporter who catches the government in a lie, who uncovers fraud or even examples of monumental waste, could go to jail.

The sponsors of S. 1 vigorously deny that this is the objective. The bill's purpose, they say, is to recodify and revise the Federal criminal code. But many lawyers are convinced that it would amount to a national secrecy act and would have the effect of putting the press in a straitjacket.

A similar bill, known as S. 1400, died in the last Congress. It was introduced at the request of the Nixon Administration but had no substantive hearing. However, two Senate subcommittees did invite testimony from civil libertarians to spotlight the sweeping grant of governmental censorship tucked away in several sections of the bill.

Senator Edmund S. Muskie D-Me., whose subcommittee on intergovernmental relations was involved in that earlier inquiry, says the provisions now before Congress may be intended to protect legitimate secrets and prosecute intentional acts of espionage.

But he maintains they are broad enough to cover any act of communication of which the government disapproves.

Thus, Muskie is convinced that the proposed law would force newsmen to rely upon self-serving press releases churned out by timid bureaucrats — or risk going to jail for uncovering the truth.

An analysis of the proposed law by Dan Lewis, a former Muskie legislative aide who now practices law in Washington, concludes that S. 1, if enacted, would place in the hands of the executive branch the power to hide corruption, waste, mistake and criminal acts in the area of national defense and, beyond this, "the power to silence its critics."

The key word in the pending bill is "communicate," blanketing a multitude of alleged sinners, ranging from reporters to newspaper delivery boys. Anyone who aided in making the communication would be considered an accomplice, according to Lewis.

In Muskie's opinion, the bill would make it a criminal act to engage in much of what is now regarded as investigative reporting of national defense issues.

These provisions, he says, would permit the executive branch to jail journalists who did not reveal the sources of unauthorized defense information, to put wiretaps on reporters suspected of receiving such information and to provide the government the tools of the grand jury to discover those who communicate broadly-defined "defense information."

muskie uses the example of a journalist printing information about the secret U.S. bombing in Cambodia during the Vietnam war. Since that information had not been officially released, the reporting of it would be a felony, even if the newsmen got it from his own observation or through a foreign press report.

Lewis' analysis suggests that publication is not the sole offense covered by the bill. Even secret briefings of reporters or others would be a criminal act. The felony would cover not only harmful "leaks" and justifiable "leaks" but also any discussion of nonofficial defense data.

This sweeping change departs sharply from the present espionage laws which generally limit criminal prosecution to spying and stealing of secrets in the traditional sense. The present laws have been limited by both Congress and the courts to cover specific, enumerated types of vital secret information and to require proof that the persons involved were out to injure the United States and its military posture.

Attorney General Edward Levi has recently expressed concern over the breadth of the proposal insofar as it would impose criminal penalties on newsmen without a finding of intent to harm this country, or without specifying the categories of defense information covered.

Some quiet meetings have been going on for several weeks between staff aides to Muskie, Senators Phil Hart of Michigan, Birch Bayh of Indiana and Alan Cranston of California, as well as representatives of the newspaper and broadcast media to draft what Muskie calls a "workable alternative" to the Administration's proposal. The Justice Department has been interested and cooperative.

The administration appears to be sensitive to the potentially serious questions affecting the First Amendment rights of the press. Sen. Roman Hruska R-Neb., a chief sponsor of the criminal code revision bill, says he will sponsor an amendment to narrow its definition of national defense information to material involving a "substantial danger to the safety of the United States and the armed forces thereof."

Hruska also indicated he will go along with an amendment which would spell out an "intention" to prejudice the U.S. safety in any prosecution involving unauthorized disclosure of defense information.

Both Muskie and Hruska appear to be searching for a way to protect legitimate national secrets without stifling a probing and aggressive media.

No safety from assassins

The attempt on President Ford's life underscores the nearly impossible task of shielding the President from someone who is determined enough to assassinate him, whoever he is.

In that, the United States is unique. In other nations, assassinations are accomplished by conspiracy. A tough, ruthless secret police can keep tabs on known or suspected rebels and persons disaffected with the current regime.

In this country, every assassination, except for that of Abraham Lincoln, has been carried out by loners, persons acting on their own. As such, they are almost impossible to detect, trace or supervise.

Lynn Fromme, for example, was known to be a follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, and therefore as an anti-social activist (in terms of our society). She was known to be living in Sacramento, where the President was visiting. But she was never known to have harbored a desire to harm any President, and so she was not kept under surveillance.

The open tradition of our political system, where the President is expected to shake hands with crowds of wellwishers wherever he goes, is an open invitation to any would-be assassin who fits into that category. Fromme certainly does. She also is part of that group known to be anti-establishment.

Someone who feels strongly enough that this society is inequitable and that the nation's leaders aren't doing anything about it, might also be expected to begin thinking simply that if the leader is assassinated, then things will change. They don't, of course, but that sort of idea, once implanted, grows with furious speed.

That's what makes it so hard to prevent such incidents as Friday's. And contrary to the anti-gun talk that revives every time an assassination is attempted, banning hand guns is no answer. A person who is sufficiently convinced that murder is the only solution is going to find a weapon no matter what.

There have been attempts on a President's life in this country since 1835. It is not a new phenomenon, although the general deterioration of morals and the strictures of society in recent years have produced a spate of assassination attempts on government leaders unprecedented in our history.

Distasteful as it is, we're afraid the threat of assassination is going to be a long time with us. At least, as long as we have a system that places men alone in positions of great power and authority. And as long as there are people who feel that the way out of their own private hells, or out of a greater maze, is to be found in a single, explosive shot.

Alternative won

Portugal is not off the hook yet, but what seemed a few weeks ago to be an imminent takeover of that tiny nation by a militant and well organized Communist minority has been halted.

That is a cause for satisfaction, but also an opportunity for study. It has been distressingly common for nations such as Portugal, with no tradition of popular democracy and emerging from decades of poverty and authoritarian rule, to fall to communism almost on command. Why didn't that happen this time?

In great part because there exists in Portugal a competing ideology that proved to be stronger than communism, probably because it has been entrenched in Portuguese life for centuries: the church. The Catholic Church has been an implacable foe of communism and its atheistic bent since October, 1917.

Also, the "Flower Revolution" that toppled the Salazar-bred, right-wing dictatorship was a non-violent one. It left no residue of fear to dissuade anti-Communists from taking to the streets and making a takeover impossible without harsh, bloody repression.

The lesson there is that politics, like nature abhors a vacuum. If there is an alternative to communism available to fill a political vacuum, the odds are good that communism will not be invited in to do the job. In our battle to halt the spread of communism, it would be well to remember that and provide an alternative as capable of capturing the hearts and minds of men.

'I think we've got something here for the bicentennial'

Washington focus: Moscow hopes Mideast pact fails

Moscow's role in the Middle East. There is little evidence that the Soviets actively tried to obstruct the new interim Israeli-Egyptian peace agreement. There is evidence that they don't like it and hope it won't work. They are counting on Syria and the Palestinian Liberation Organization to try to wreck it.

Egyptian Communists now attacking Sadat. Soviet propaganda broadcasts in Arabic are hailing the rebirth of the Communist Party in Egypt. The Egyptian Communist Party disbanded two years ago but is now coming to the surface again. Its two objectives, which Moscow welcomes, are to oppose the peace agreement and to prepare the groundwork for a military coup to oust President Anwar Sadat.

Soviets heightening cold war against China. Moscow is currently directing its harshest attack against Peking in its long feud with the People's Republic of China.

Roscoe Drummond

Its theme is "crush Maoism." It has just put out some 12,000 words on China and brands Peking "a danger to both Communist and capitalist nations." The Soviets contend that Communist nations which are "neutral" to Mao's policies are "harming communism."

Ford's diagnosis of recovery proves right.

The President has consistently contended that it would be harder to end inflation than to end the recession, and that it was important to hold down inflationary government spending.

It is working out that way. A broad and sustainable business upswing is under way. All the most reliable measures of economic activity have been favorable for several months. The worst of the recession is behind us. The need now is to bring inflation under better control.

The French press on Ford. Les Echos, Paris (conservative): "The balance sheet is largely positive. Watergate is forgotten and political life is no longer poisoned. He has a good grasp of world problems, even if he lacks subtle or prophetic vision." Le Quotidien de Paris (liberal): "Ford won a sort of success in Europe. His message was that America is still here and the center of things."

Violence in public schools still mounting. Estimates indicate an annual loss of nearly $600 million connected with vandalism and crime in schools. This represents approximately $13 per child enrolled in public schools, which is not available for educational efforts. Such violence exposes children and teachers alike to physical danger. But its greatest cost is that it robs children of their rightful education, and that is one cost the nation ought not to tolerate.

Parents and teachers need to understand more fully and realistically what they can do to help. The most practical, thoughtful pamphlet I have read has been prepared by the National Committee for Citizens in Education. It is called "Violence in Our Schools. What to Know About It, and What to Do About It." Copies can be obtained on request from the committee in Columbia, Md. 21044.

Congressional Quarterly

Pro-con: Workmen's comp standards necessary?

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Already at loggerheads over federal standards for unemployment compensation, labor and management soon will lock horns over proposed federal standards for workers' compensation, the benefits paid to workers who suffer job-related injuries or illnesses.

Federal standards generally are opposed by employer organizations and many insurance companies. These groups contend that workers' compensation should be left up to the states which, they say, are moving swiftly to improve their own laws.

Labor, on the other hand, favors federal standards. Labor spokesmen argue that states have not moved fast enough to upgrade their laws and that, consequently, compensation in many areas is still inadequate, not even covering the basic costs of living.

These arguments will be amplified at hearings by a Senate Labor and Public Welfare subcommittee in late September or October. The subcommittee is now soliciting comments from interested parties on a federal standards bill that would establish maximum and minimum benefits to serve as wage replacement to workers or their families in the event of total disability or death. Less than half the states currently meet the maximum level contained in the bill.

Many of the standards in the bill follow closely the recommendations of a 1972 commission on state workers' compensation laws. That commission recommended that the states be given until July 1975 to bring their laws into compliance with 19 essential recommendations made by the commission; if they did not, Congress should act. None of the states has met all of the commission standards.

The issue then is: Should Congress enact federal standards for state workers' compensation laws?

Pro:

"Even though 1974 was a bumper year for state activity in this area, with over 200 separate amendments enacted in the various states, adequate protection is still an illusion," says Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. (D N.J.), chairman of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee and a co-author of the federal standards bill.

Between 1940 and 1972, benefits, calculated as a percentage of the state's average weekly wage, actually declined in 27 states, Williams said. In 1920, 45 states paid a maximum benefit equal to 60 per cent of the state's average weekly wage; by 1972, the number had dropped to 18 states, he said. Such low maximum payments "make it a certainty the victims and their families cannot escape poverty," Williams concluded.

Labor representatives have applauded another standard that would give a worker with a slow-developing, job-related disease, such as lung cancer, up to three years from the time he knew he had the disease to file a claim for compensation. Many states permit workers to file claims only within a certain period from the time the disease was actually contracted.

Labor spokesmen acknowledge that federal standards could add to the costs for some employers, especially those with high injury or illness rates, but they contend the cost will not be as great as opponents claim. Because of the Occupational Safety and Health Act, emphasis in the workplace now is on accident prevention, says a spokesman for the United Auto Workers. "In the long run," he said, "increased benefit payments may well be offset by fewer accidents."

Summing up labor sentiments, James O'Brien of the AFL-CIO's social security department said the federal bill is "a vast improvement over anything we currently have in the state programs."

Con:

Management sentiments were just as concisely summarized by John G. Tysse, director of occupational safety and health for the National Association of Manufacturers. "The states are making good progress in improving their laws and federal legislation is unnecessary," he declared.

Thomas A. O'Day, director of public affairs for the American Mutual Insurance Alliance, says federal proposals are actually detrimental to state action because they remove the initiative of "certain groups, predominantly labor, to work for needed adjustments in state plans."

Andre Maisonnier, vice president of the alliance, agreed. "It would be highly disruptive if Congress imposed a new and different blueprint on the states by enacting the proposed federal standards bill," he said. The alliance's member companies write about 30 per cent of U.S. workers' compensation insurance.

Employer organizations also argue that federal standards are unconstitutional because they require the states to administer federal law. The Supreme Court is scheduled to hear arguments during its fall term on that and related issues in a key case involving federal minimum wage and overtime pay standards. The case has been brought by the National League of Cities.

Finally, employers argue that a federal standards bill will be unnecessarily expensive. The push for enactment is "surprising in light of the increased attention on the costs and dubious effectiveness of federal regulations," says Michael J. Romig of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. "It's puzzling," he continued, "... when both business and labor recognize the need for increased private capital to expand and create more jobs, (that) a serious proposal is advanced to saddle business with more federally dictated costs."

Gallup Poll

Ford leading GOP

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Gerald Ford has widened his lead over Ronald Reagan and other possible candidates for the Republican nomination in 1976.

In the latest Gallup survey, 45 per cent of Republicans select Ford as their first choice for the nomination next year. Reagan is named next most often, by 19 per cent, followed by Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, 11 per cent.

Reagan, the man most likely to challenge Ford if an intra-party struggle for the '76 nomination develops, has been losing ground to the President since March.

The latest results confirm the fears of conservative strategists who have been urging Reagan to formally announce his candidacy before he falls too far behind Ford. Reagan presently trails the President by 26 percentage points. The margin was 21 points in June and 12 points in March.

Following is the question asked to determine the first choices of Republican voters for the 1976 nomination:

"Here is a list of people (respondents were handed a card with the names of 10 men whose names have figured prominently in speculation for the '76 GOP nomination) who have been mentioned as possible presidential candidates for the Republican nomination in 1976. Which ONE would you like to see nominated as the Republican candidate in 1976?"

FIRST CHOICES OF REPUBLICAN VOTERS FOR NOMINATION

	Latest per cent	June per cent	March per cent
Gerald Ford	45	41	34
Ronald Reagan	19	20	22
Barry Goldwater	11	13	17
Nelson
Rockefeller	7	5	10
Charles Percy	4	4	3
John Connally	3	2	0
Howard Baker	3	4	4
James Buckley	2	1	1
Mark Hatfield	2	2	3
Elliot Richardson	1	3	3
No preference	3	5	3

* Not included on March list.

Should Reagan decide against challenging Ford, the President would move into an even wider lead over the rest of the Republicans on the list.

Because all Republicans were asked to indicate their second choice for the nomination, it is possible to see which candidate would be supported by those who made Reagan their first choice.

Results show the largest share of the Reagan vote going to Ford — not to the other avowedly conservative men on the list. Approximately one-third, 31 per cent, of the Reagan supporters opt for the President as a second choice, giving Ford a 51 per cent majority.

Here's how the list looks with Reagan's vote redistributed:

FIRST CHOICES OF REPUBLICAN VOTERS FOR NOMINATION (with Reagan vote redistributed)

Ford	51
Goldwater	15
Rockefeller	9
Percy	5
Connally	5
Baker	3
Buckley	2
Hatfield	2
Richardson	2
No preference-others	6

As well as solidifying his hold on GOP voters, Ford has vaulted into the lead among independents as first choice for the GOP nomination.

Previously, in June, Ford was fourth, trailing Reagan as well as Rockefeller and Goldwater, with 10 per cent of the vote.

In the latest survey, Ford is the first choice of 31 per cent of independents, followed by Reagan, 23 per cent, and Goldwater, 12 per cent.

Here's how the choices of independents look today and the trend for this year:

FIRST CHOICES OF INDEPENDENT VOTERS FOR NOMINATION

	Latest per cent	June per cent	March per cent
Gerald Ford	31	10	17
Ronald Reagan	23	16	20
Barry Goldwater	12	11	11
Charles Percy	7	8	7
Nelson
Rockefeller	6	14	11
Howard Baker	4	4	6
Elliot Richardson	4	5	7
John Connally	3	6	0
James Buckley	2	4	2
Mark Hatfield	2	3	3
No preference	6	19	16

* Not included on March list.

In addition, the President is an easy first choice of those independents who are presently leaning Republican.

With Republican political affiliation at a low point, the vote of independents is crucial to the GOP if the party is to retain control of the White House. It is important, therefore, for Republicans to select the candidate who has wide appeal among independents, a group which now makes up one-third of the American electorate.

STROUDSBURG — Mount Airy Lodge has been sued for more than $20,000 according to papers filed Friday in the Monroe County Courthouse.

According to an amended complaint filed on behalf of Michael Silvestri of Langhorne, the lodge was negligent in fitting skis, boots and bindings to Silvestri who sustained a compound fracture of the left ankle in a fall Jan. 16, 1973.

Silvestri maintains the equipment was not selected properly. He also asserts he was an employee of Mount Airy at the time and was discharged due to his injury and was unable to find work for about seven months.

Beef shish kebabs without fat

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Nothing beats beef-on-skewers for glamour. Or calories! Unfortunately, the cuts of steak best suited for "skewer-cooking" are also the most fattening. Most expensive, too.

On the other hand, the leanest, least expensive and least-fattening beef cuts need stewing or slow-cooking to be tender.

Today we tell you how to save calories and money by using these leaner, less tender beef cubes for skewer cooking. Our method is two step. First the meat is cut in cubes, threaded on skewers and slow-cooked in its own tenderizing marinade. Then it's unwrapped and quick-browned over the coals or under the broiler.

You can use this method indoors or out, any time of year. Your beef-on-skewers will be well-done, but tender and tasty, flavored through with the marinade. Here's how:

Tender-cooked, lean BBQ beef on skewers

Recipe may be doubled or tripled.

- 1 pound fat-trimmed lean beef roundsteak or armsteak, cut in cubes
- 1 cup tenderizing baste (see below)
- skewers
- heavy duty aluminum foil

To cook outdoors: Thread meat onto skewers. Place on heavy-duty foil sheet. Lift foil up around skewers. Pour on the marinade. Double-wrap with foil, taking care not to puncture it with the skewers.

Arrange the packet on your covered barbecue grill over hot coals. Cook one and one-half hours or more, until tender.

Turn the packet occasionally to insure even cooking. Unwrap carefully to check tenderness.

When meat is tender, remove skewers. Arrange the skewers on grill over hot coals, continue cooking until nicely browned. Turn frequently and baste with reserved marinade from packets.

To cook indoors: Arrange the meat-threaded skewers in shallow baking dish. Pour on marinade. Cover dish with foil. Bake in 325-degree oven until tender — about 90 minutes.

When tender, remove the skewered meat from baking dish. Finish cooking under broiler to brown. Turn to brown evenly and baste occasionally with reserved marinade. Serves 4, about 200 calories each.

Tenderizing marinade baste — any combination of slightly acid liquids can be used — tomato juice, citrus juice, dry wine diluted with water. One teaspoon of commercial meat tenderizer may be stirred into the liquid. Season to taste with garlic powder, spices or herbs, which add few or no extra calories. Absolutely no fat or oil is needed.

Here are some combinations to try:

Japanese Teriyaki baste: ¼ cup dry sherry, ¼ cup soy sauce, ½ cup water, ¼ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon MSG.

Italian baste: 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1½ teaspoons garlic salt, 1 teaspoon oregano or Italian seasoning, ¼ cup water.

Italian baste II: ½ cup bottled low-calorie Italian diet dressing, ½ cup water or, for variety, substitute any other type of diet salad dressing.

French baste: ½ cup diet French dressing, ¼ cup dry white wine, ¼ cup water.

Polynesian baste: ¾ cup unsweetened apricot juice, 2 tablespoons catsup, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons soy sauce, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon granulated sugar substitute.

Hot 'n' spicy baste: 1 cup tomato juice, ½ envelope or more "bloody Mary" mix, 1 teaspoon onion powder.

Veal Parnigiana, veal scallopini, veal and peppers, veal mock sausage... veal is the lowest-calorie meat there is. For these and other diet recipes, plus reducing tips, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents to SLIM GOURMET VEAL RECIPES, in care of The Pocono Record, Sparta, N.J. 07871.

TRAUMA CAUSES MOST CHRONIC HEADACHES
By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, D.C.
Trauma to the neck, not nervous or neurotic factors, is the single most important factor in causing chronic headaches, a former chief surgeon for the Pentagon, Dr. Murray Braaf, has found. The orthopedist recently completed a survey of more than 6,000 headache cases observed over a 20-year period. His findings support the conclusion that, although there are contributing factors, 90 percent of the cases can be traced to an old neck injury or strain of the neck. Likewise, Chiropractors have contended that injuries old or new to the neck, have an affect on the nerve fibers passing between the vertebrae from the spinal cord producing pain and headache that most often can be treated by chiropractic adjustments. (One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, Chiropractic Orthopedist, Brodheadsville, Pa. 18322. Phone 992-4787.)

Paper profit difficult

By ALAN GOULD JR.

The Record had a unique phone call last week. It was from Gene Rumbarger, a very personable newspaper salesman from International Paper Co.

Gene asked how our building addition was coming.

"It should be finished sometime this month," he was told.

"Great. Then would you like to order some extra newsprint?" he asked.

The answer was that we are interested but will await completion rather than risk storage complications. But that's not the point. The point is that a newsprint company has paper it is eager to unload.

In the last two years it has hardly been thus. In fact a main purpose of our new space under construction is to provide stockpiling room for newsprint. We want to stay a few months ahead in supply so we aren't caught short.

We were, badly, two years ago this month. It's an anniversary we don't recall fondly. But as with most crises, it led to re-evaluations, better systems and eventually safeguards.

In short, we learned and improved due to the emergency with one exception — the price of our basic raw material has been boosted about 65 per cent. So even though we're using less of it, we're still being burned by the economies that stem from the shortage.

Example: In the first six months this year our average daily newspaper sale was 15,365. That's exactly 1,215 more papers than the daily average in the first six months of 1973. And yet we used 35 fewer tons of newsprint in the first six months this year than we did in the first six months two years ago.

Several newsprint economies came as the result of the shortage that was caused initially by a two-month's strike.

We cut our complimentary list, reduced waste on the press, stopped much of the sampling that had long been a favorite means of enticing customers and we compacted the ads to cut the number of pages in the paper by approximately a half page per day.

Unfortunately as we were reducing consumption of newsprint, its cost was rocketing.

Example: Even though we used eight per cent less newsprint in the first half of this year compared to 1973, it cost us 40 per cent more in dollars.

This has been going on for the best part of two years and dictated even more pondering on ways to cut costs without cutting the quality and service of your newspaper. The best answers, so far, have been in the specifications of the newsprint itself.

Over a year ago we did two things which created obvious savings to us without obvious changes in the product.

First was reduction of the roll size from a width of 32 inches to 30 inches. That meant the width of a page from centerfold to the outside edge was shortened to 15 inches from the previous 16. This was done primarily by using less "white space" margins on the inside and outside of each page. This reduced our costs by seven per cent.

Then we also went from a 32-pound paper to a 30-pound. Almost all other newspapers have done the same thing (or gone to an even thinner newsprint) to the point that it is almost impossible to locate 32-pound paper any more. The mills don't produce it.

This saved another seven per cent by giving us more pages per roll. On an annual newsprint bill of well over $200,000, those "seven per cents" have helped cut a 65 per cent price increase to 40 per cent at The Record.

The dream this week is that Gene Rumbarger's call indicating a newsprint surplus at the mills could lead to a price cut — or at least no new increases. Yes, it's a dream.

Driving costs increase

DETROIT (UPI) — Inflation and the rising price of gasoline have pushed up the cost of driving the family car by 14 per cent in the last year.

Figures released by the Hertz Corp. car leasing division also showed why many Americans are switching to small cars that now account for nearly one of every two sales. The small cars are $600 a year cheaper to operate than mid-sized models and $1,000 cheaper than big cars that travel 10,000 miles a year.

For the owner of an intermediate-sized, two-door sedan — like the Torino or Chevelle — the cost has climbed from 24 cents a mile one year ago to just over 27 cents in the first half of 1975.

A subcompact, such as the Vega, Pinto or any small foreign model, have jumped to 21 cents a mile, up 2 cents.

For the larger, standard-size car, owners have seen the cost increase from 28.5 cents a mile in 1974 to 31 cents this year.

While gasoline prices have climbed to 57.5 cents a gallon this year from 55 cents in mid-1974 and 35 cents a gallon two years ago, the heavy cost of owning a car has been the greatest factor in the higher operating costs, according to J.E. Menendez, the Hertz group vice president.

Depreciation — that is, the difference between a car's purchase price and its trade-in value — took the biggest jump. It went up an average of two cents a mile over one year.

Interest costs, insurance, licenses, parts, service and repairs also climbed.

Menendez said the Hertz figures are higher than some government, automaker and driver club figures because other computations may ignore interest charges and also assume that the same person owns a car for 10 years.

"That produces unrealistically low per-mile expense figures that are not applicable to the more typical drivers, who keep a new car for one to five years," Menendez said.

Simon remains optimistic

Economic signs improve

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William Simon said Sunday present fiscal and monetary controls can produce greater employment and reduced inflation without additional steps by the administration.

Simon said in a television interview (NBC-TV's Meet the Press) that the nation will "continue to have positive real growth in 1976 and a declining employment rate, and it's going to be a lot faster than budget projections."

"I don't think additional steps must be taken," he said. "We have the policies in place — the fiscal and monetary policies that we are attempting to bring into balance that over the long run are going to solve this problem."

He said signs of growing inflation last month result from "special factors" such as rising oil and food prices that "will pass through the economy."

UPI's boxcore of economic indicators bears out predictions of a rising economy — except for static unemployment statistics — but indicates that inflation is rising at an annual rate of 14.4 per cent.

Here is a summary of the latest figures:

UNEMPLOYMENT: The unemployment rate held in August at 8.4 per cent, with rehired industrial workers offsetting still-growing numbers of jobless teenagers and minorities. The monthly rate was the same as July and slightly below the 8.6 per cent of June.

INFLATION: The Consumer Price Index jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the steepest monthly rise since last September, and on the heels of an 0.8 increase in June. In July the annual rate was 14.4 per cent — even higher than had been predicted by administration officials who warned of a new increase.

REAL EARNINGS: The average worker's "real" income — wages plus fringe benefits after allowing for inflation — fell 0.5 per cent in July and is now down 0.3 per cent in the past 12 months.

WHOLESALE PRICES: Paced by sharp price rises for fuel and other energy products, wholesale prices rose 0.8 per cent in August. Combined with July's 1.2 per cent spurt, the increase marked the biggest two-month advance in wholesale prices since last October and November.

PRODUCTIVITY: Productivity increased 9.5 per cent in the June quarter for its highest quarterly gain in more than four years. The increase reflected a 4.5 per cent increase in output and a 4.5 per cent decline in workhours.

TRADE — The U.S. balance of payments, bolstered by less foreign investment, less foreign travel by Americans and more exports, scored a $1.23 billion surplus in the second quarter of the year. It followed a $2.95 billion surplus in the first quarter. It was the sixth straight month in the black for the trade ledger.

INDICATORS: The index of leading business indicators rose 1.7 per cent in July to sustain the longest upward climb in 2½ years. The July gain followed "a very strong upward revision" of 1 per cent in the June index to 2.9 per cent. The index has in the past accurately forecast economic prosperity or recession.

GNP: The "real" Gross National Product — with inflation removed from the figures — rose 1.6 per cent in the second quarter of 1975 for the first increase since the recession began. The growth in the April-June period was the highest since the first quarter of 1971, and followed an 11.4 per cent decline in the first quarter of the year.

OUTPUT: Industrial production increased in July for the first back-to-back monthly gain since the end of the Arab oil embargo. Output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities climbed 0.5 per cent in July to match the revised June increase. It had declined for the previous 8 months.

HOUSING STARTS: Residential housing starts rose to a 1.238 million unit annual rate in July compared to 1.07 million in June. It was the fastest pace since July a year ago, when the annual rate was 1.314 million.

Soviets urge continuing talks for Mideast peace

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet newspaper said Sunday the Israeli-Egyptian interim peace agreement does not advance an overall Middle East settlement and called for multi-sided talks to settle the crisis.

"There are good reasons to assert that the second disengagement agreement on the Egyptian-Israeli front does not bring the Middle East closer to a settlement," the newspaper Moskovskaya Pravda said.

"The problem of firm peace in this region of the world demands multi-lateral talks with the participation of all interested parties," it said.

(In Beirut, the pro-Libyan newspaper As Safir said the Soviet Union does not intend to leave the Middle East region for the United States and will

Farm union holding lead over Teamsters

DELANO, Calif. (UPI) — Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers held a 3-1 edge over the huge Teamsters Union Sunday after the first secret collective bargaining elections in American farm labor history.

A head-on confrontation was in the making next Wednesday at vineyards of the Gallo Co. in the Salinas area when field workers will vote whether they want to be represented by the UFW or the Teamsters, or whether they want no union at all.

Chavez won a significant victory Saturday when field hands at the big Caratan fruit "ranch" outside Delano cast 121 votes to join the UFW while 41 marked ballots signifying they wanted no union representation.

The Teamsters did not attempt to get on the ballot although they have had a contract with the Caratan brothers, growers of seedless grapes, oranges, wheat and barley, for the past two years.

The situation was the reverse at the Richardson farms at Bakersfield, Calif., a 1,000-acre spread growing grapes, peaches, plums and green beans, where 70 workers voted for the Teamsters as the bargaining agent and five wanted no union.

At the Brokaw nursery near Ventura, Calif., where seedling avocado trees are grown, the vote Saturday was 40 for the UFW, 15 for no union and 14 uncounted because they were challenged.

Meanwhile, outside Castroville, Calif., "artichoke capital of the world," 15 of 18 eligible voters at the Molera Agricultural Group Ranch cast ballots earlier to join the UFW — making history in the first of hundreds of state-supervised farm union elections set for the next few weeks.

There had been no direct choice in any of the four elections so far, so that particular interest was focused on the upcoming balloting of some 600 workers at four Gallo vineyards.

fight American diplomatic efforts in the area. Quoting a "high-ranking" Soviet official, the newspaper said, "The Middle East does not only represent an international matter for the Soviet Union, but has also become an internal Soviet matter."

Western diplomats said it was significant that the Soviets again called for a conference with participation of all sides to reach a Middle East settlement.

However, the sources said the phrasing of the call indicated the Kremlin might be thinking of a conference outside the framework of the Geneva talks, a cause the Soviets have been pressing for years.

"By the fact of signing this agreement in Geneva the sides tried to create the atmosphere of the talks being held within the framework of the Geneva peace conference on the Middle East," Moskovskaya Pravda said. "But in reality things were different."

It said the talks left out Arab countries other than Egypt, the United Nations and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Maryland Governor listed as witness for grand jury

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Gov. Marvin Mandel will be asked to testify before a federal grand jury probing alleged political corruption in Maryland, probably in late October, the Baltimore News American reported Sunday.

Quoting unidentified federal sources, the newspaper said permission to call Mandel was granted last month at a meeting between U.S. Attorney Jervis Finney and federal justice department officials.

At the meeting, federal officials agreed that there is sufficient evidence to justify a continuation of the probe that began in April 1974 and has produced convictions against former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and former Baltimore

Involves destroying evidence

Pa. law tough on bookies

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A recently enacted Pennsylvania statute prohibiting tampering with or fabricating physical evidence may prove to be a potent weapon against bookmakers.

Allegheny County authorities say they have made the first arrest and successful prosecution under the new law, and they are calling the case "precedent-setting."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional records show the Securities and Exchange Commission lets business groups pay the expenses of SEC members who attend their conventions and meetings — a practice forbidden in most cases by other federal regulatory agencies.

"It's better to be like Caesar's wife — you know, above suspicion," an Interstate Commerce Commission spokesman said.

Information supplied by the six major regulatory commissions to a House investigative subcommittee showed all but the SEC regard such reimbursements from businessmen under their jurisdiction a potential conflict of interest.

"The SEC has always felt it is useful to get its message across to the industry it regulates" SEC Associate General Counsel Naul Gonson told UPI.

Therefore, he said, the commission often — but not always — allows the host groups to pay travel, food and lodging expenses of commissioners invited to appear at their conventions and meetings.

"It comes down to a question of whether the taxpayers should pay or whether these groups who are willing to pay should foot the bill," Gonson said.

"We feel and know that in fact there is nothing wrong with it. There is no suggestion or evidence that anybody has been unduly influenced or compromised by it."

Gonson said the SEC "draws the line" at accepting expenses for invitations extended by an individual stockbroker, businessman or firm, and in those cases pays the expenses itself. It does, however, accept expense reimbursement for functions hosted by associations or similar professional groups.

Gonson said SEC's acceptance of expenses in one instance disclosed in House subcommittee records — a travel expense paid by a brokerage firm — had been "a mistake."

The reimbursement policies of the six major federal regulatory agencies were disclosed in responses to a questionnaire from the House Commerce Committee's subcommittee on oversight and investigations.

Penn State grad couldn't hear cheers

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Chuzo Okuda didn't hear any applause when he received his PhD. in mathematics at Penn State University's summer graduation ceremonies. But there was plenty of it.

Okuda, 27, is totally deaf.

"He's a remarkable young man," Dr. Christine Ayoub, his thesis adviser, said of her Japanese pupil.

"I don't know how he managed his classroom courses," she said. "While working on a doctoral thesis, you're more on your own, and he worked exceptionally hard with tremendous powers of concentration."

Dr. Ayoub and Chuzo communicated mostly through notes and on a blackboard.

"We got into a sort of shorthand that we both came to understand," Dr. Ayoub said.

Chuzo, who has been deaf since the age of four, became interested in mathematics by reading science books and biographies.

"I got inspiration from those stories," he said.

He studied English and math in an Osaka, Japan, high school but there was no college for the deaf in his country. So he came to the United States and studied hearing and speech before receiving an assistantship in mathematics at Penn State in 1970.

"I had a hard time learning math here," Okuda said.

"Also, I didn't understand lectures, notes and books at that time."

"It seemed too difficult to understand and I was quite frustrated," he said. "Also, I felt lonely and alone in the hearing world fighting with these hard subjects."

Dr. Ayoub admitted she was a little disappointed at first in Okuda's work.

"But I felt he didn't know what was expected," she said. "He had a bit of a discouraging period, but once he got over that, he was a tremendous worker."

Social Security number: Tomorrow's 'identifier'?

By DORI JONES
Dow Jones-Ottaway News Everywhere you turn someone seems to be asking for your Social Security number — when you open a checking account, when you apply for a driver's license, when you buy a savings bond, often when you apply for a credit card or a job.

More than your phone number, your license-plate number, or any of the other numbers you deal with every day — more even than your name, for many persons — the Social Security number has become the one identity that follows wherever you go.

Is the Social Security number on its way to becoming an all-purpose identifying number for Americans? Some say that result is inevitable;
others are fighting against it as a potentially dangerous invasion of privacy.

In Sweden a similar system of personal identification seems to work. Each baby is assigned a number that follows it from cradle to grave, to be used for everything from a credit purchase at a store to tax and criminal records.

"The system has the advantage of transcending name changes caused by marriage or adoption, of efficiency for the record keepers, and of reduction of fraud caused by mis-identification. And the Swedes also do not have to keep track of a different eight or nine-digit number for every transaction.

But such a universal personal identifier can have serious consequences if no appropriate safeguards are instituted against misuse — particularly in the computer age — of personal information stored, under it.

"It's not the number that's the evil, and it's not the information that's the evil; it's the decision to collect and use the information," says Hope Eastman, a lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union, which, she says, stands "unalterably opposed" to the expansion of the Social Security number to a universal identifier.

The expanding use of the Social Security number confuses many people because the innocuous-looking card itself reads, "for Social Security purposes — not for identification."
This legend, however, means only that the card cannot be relied upon as positive evidence of the bearer's identity, not that information about the person cannot be stored in computers under that number.

The Social Security board itself was the first to expand use of the number in 1937 when it authorized use of the number for state unemployment-insurance programs. The number became nearly universal in this country in 1961 when the Internal Revenue Service began demanding that taxpayers include it on tax records.

Because of this decision, all individuals who earn money must furnish their numbers to their sources of income: employers, savings and loan institutions, corporations that pay dividends, insurance companies, and so forth. Children of wealthy parents must be given Social Security numbers as infants if trust funds are established in their names.

During the '60s, new uses for the number multiplied. The military began to use it as an

I.D. number for servicemen.
Schools were authorized to issue it to ninth graders "for both automatic data processing and control purposes."
Many states began putting the numbers on driver's licenses, and banks were required to obtain them for each checking account.

Congress recently passed a law requiring applicants for Aid to Families with Dependent Children to supply not only their own numbers but that of each of their children.
This stipulation is designed to check welfare fraud by ensuring that women do not "borrow" each other's children to get more benefits.

The important question is not so much whether the Social Security number makes a good universal identifier, but rather, do we want or need such an identifier?

The answer is no, according to the HEW committee on automated personal-data systems, consisting of 25 persons with widely diverse viewpoints.

The committee said in its 1973 report:

"We recommend against the adoption of any nationwide, standard, personal identification format, with or without the SSN (Social Security Number) that would enhance the likelihood of arbitrary or uncontrolled linkage of records about people... What is needed is a halt to the drift toward an SUI (Standard Universal Identifier) and prompt action to establish safeguards providing legal sanctions against abuses of automated personal-data systems."

The Privacy Act of 1974 followed through on some of the committee's suggestions, but did not eliminate the exchange of personal data. Within a governmental department, such as HEW, employees still have access to the data banks of other HEW agencies on a "need to know" basis.

China updating written language

HONG KONG (UPI) — China is preparing to move into a new stage in one of her most ambitious, most difficult, and most significant reform programs — romanization of the written Chinese language.

Reform of the difficult, ideographic language has been a high priority project since the communists came to power almost 26 years ago.

"The written language must be reformed," Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung said in 1951. "The common direction of phoneticization for all written languages in the world must be followed."

work on the task the following year, and in 1958 Premier Chou En-lai outlined three stages for the reform program.

First was a reduction of the number of characters in use and simplification of their written form.

Next was popularization of a common speech, or dialect, based on Peking pronunciation and called "Pu Tung Hua," in preparation for the alphabetizing of written Chinese. "Pu Tung Hua" is essentially the same as the Mandarin, or North China, dialect.

Although the first two stages are far from completed, the third stage begins this September.

This is the formal switch to widespread use of the phonetic alphabet, which has been in use in schools for several years. It also has been in general use, such as store and shop signs and other public places, on a limited basis for several years.

The romanized version is used along with the regular Chinese characters now. The ultimate aim is to eliminate the characters.

This is a project that will take more than a few years or a few decades. It will take generations.

Kuo Mo-jo, president of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, said "a long transition period must precede phoneticization of the Chinese characters."

If China pursues this reform program aggressively, Kuo said, eventually "the use of the Chinese characters will, like the ancient Greek, Latin and Sanskrit languages, be limited to a small number of specialists."

There are more than 50,000 characters in the Chinese ideographic language. Writing these is like drawing a picture, which is the way the language evolved over the past 4,000 years.

About 5,000 characters are in common use, and a person must memorize at least 1,500 to be considered literate. The number in common use is being reduced steadily. The aim is to have fewer than 3,000, about the number that have been simplified so far.

The transliteration of Chinese characters that has been in use for many years in the West is based on a system devised mainly by missionary scholars.

The new system in China is considerably different. For instance, in the transliteration of cities, Peking (old) is Beijing (new), Tientsin is Tian Jin, and Chungking is Zhong Qing.

The advantages of romanization and the need for it were stated by one of the scholars working on the program years ago:

"The purpose of reforming the Han (Chinese) written language is to make it easy to learn, convenient to use, and capable of meeting the requirement of the modern age of atomic energy, supersonic airplanes, and electronic computers."

Young Pennsylvanians to present benefit show

EAST STROUDSBURG — Fred Waring and the Young Pennsylvanians will kick off their annual road tour with a special show at East Stroudsburg State College in Koehler Fieldhouse at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18.

The show will be a benefit sponsored by the ESSC People-to-People international program, Stroudsburg Music Parents and ESSC Varsity "S" Club.

Waring, a resident of Shawnee-on-Deleware, is celebrating his 60th year in music. His show is entitled "Music That's Entertainment!" and will feature the Young Pennsylvanians, who were formed two years ago.

Edwin Krawitz, chairman of the Waring Concert Committee said: "Fred Waring and his organization have in the past given much of their time and talent to good causes."

Under the direction of Rich Taylor and Len Thomas, the Young Pennsylvanians perform contemporary music, with a touch of "Waringism." Fast pacing, precision choreography, original arrangements and beautiful voices have won the hearts of the Waring aggregation.

Also featured at the concert will be Poley McClintock, who has been with the group for all 60 years; 20-year-old Sheila Planagan, who plays the new "Cordovox," a blend of accordeon and electronic organ, and featured singer Debra Johnson.

Tickets will become available in early September and may be purchased at various locations to be announced as well as from Band and Chorus members and their parents of the Stroudsburg High School and at East Stroudsburg State College Student Center.

Kenneth Sisson, Ticket Committee Chairman, said tickets are available at the following places:

Counterman's Drug Store in East Stroudsburg, Swartz's Barbershop in Stroudsburg, Lim's Sport Shop in Stroudsburg and the front desk at Koehler Fieldhouse, East Stroudsburg State College.

Mail orders should be directed to Kenneth Sisson, ticket chairman, Box 776, East Stroudsburg State College, East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania. A limited sale VIP Section at $40 per couple, including choice reserved seats, a champagne reception in honor of Waring following the show is available. In addition, reserved patron tickets are $10 each, reserved section, $6 general admission $4 and students $2.

Kansas City convention problem

GOP may turn to commuting

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Think of this city as a hungry old man, driven by promises of boundless riches, pleading and struggling to cram a huge elephant's foot into a tiny white boot.

That unlikely vision could characterize the fervent campaign by city officials, businessmen, civic leaders and the Chamber of Commerce to lure the prestige and delegate dollars of the Republican National Convention to porcelain-white Kemper Arena in the historic Kansas City stockyards district.

Miami Beach and Cleveland are Kansas City's competitors for the right to host more than 30,000 delegates, alternates, party officials, media representatives and the customary gaggle of spectators drawn to the quadrennial convention next August.

City officials have pledged $500,000 for improvements to the year-old arena, transportation systems, and other extras to draw the GOP to the Midwest. The city is generally regarded the front runner, but there is one serious complication — housing.

"There's no doubt some of those attending the convention will have to stay as much as 60 miles from the arena," said Ray Bennison, director of the Convention and Visitors Bureau of Greater Kansas City.

Despite assurances of full consideration and even partiality for Kansas City, party site selection officials and the GOP National Committee may hesitate to spread conventioners as far away as Topeka, Kan.

"Yes," Bennison said, "we have contracted 1,200 rooms in Topeka. But the site selection committee was impressed with Topeka as a strong Republican city with a good concentration of rooms."

"You also have to recognize that 90-95 per cent of the 16,000 rooms needed by the Republicans will be in the metropolitan area 20 minutes from the arena. We can handle it."

There have also been suggestions that private citizens rent rooms in their homes at the going hotel rates. But there is no organized effort yet for that option.

The party's site selection committee will vote Sunday (Sept. 7) on its recommendation to be submitted the next day to the GOP national committee for final action.

Cleveland also would have housing problems and officials there have talked about tying up cruise ships on the Lake Erie shore as floating delegate hotels. Housing would be no problem for Miami Beach.

Some observers agree Kansas City's advantages — political, economic, and geographic — almost obscure the housing blemish.

Missouri, Kansas and Iowa have Republican governors. The area, particularly the Kansas of Dwight Eisenhower and Alfred M. Landon, has been a GOP stronghold for decades. And President Ford's favorite predecessor, Democrat Harry S. Truman, came from nearby Independence.

"Sentimentally, there is a feeling the selection committee would like to come to Kansas City," said McDill "Huck" Boyd, Kansas GOP national committeeman. "They like the symbolism of it in the center of the nation."

Leading the courtship of the Republicans is the city's ebullient Democratic mayor, Charles Wheeler. Stressing the bipartisan nature of the campaign, Wheeler said the city proved itself last December by hosting the Democratic Mid-term Convention.

"We showed we could do the job with the Democrats," Wheeler said. "We can honestly say we have more political convention experience than any other city since 1972."

"With President Ford seeking the nomination, the convention will probably be a swift, smooth operation. It'll be like Atlantic City was for Johnson and Miami was for Nixon — a well-oiled machine."

Party officials also have decided the city would be cheap for delegates compared to the convention mills of Miami Beach, New York or Chicago. Prices here are comparatively low, and businessmen have promised not to gouge the shopping, eating, drinking hordes.

The city's impoverished downtown area would be the greatest benefactor, grabbing most of the $6 million expected to pour into the city. But the greatest strain would be on the new arena several miles to the west.

Most of the city's $500,000 — raised by private donations and possibly a hike in business taxes — would pay for temporary remodeling in the 18,000-seat facility.

The last national convention came to town during the inflationary days of 1928. That Republican gathering nominated Herbert Hoover.

Kim's map: It shows a "business route" and something more.

He made it of his paper route.

Look at Kim's "treasure" map. It's along the dotted-line that he conducts his daily business. Which is seeing that you get your newspaper on time and where you want it.

The map shows his territory. Where he makes his profit, selling our product retail to customers like you. This profit is treasure he could be laying away to help see him through college or for whatever use he chooses to make of it.

Carrier Kim also gains hidden treasure not shown on the map. The ability to get along with people. A priceless treasure. How to handle money. How to keep records and be punctual. And, on his route, he applies the lessons he learns every day in school, which is a good way to learn — by practical application.

Think about it. Youngsters like Kim are putting themselves "on the map" of life. Tell your carrier this when the dotted-line takes him to your door today.

Questions advice

Annie Old Girl: You must have donated your brains to the Hadassah rummage sale. I refer to "Concerned Mom" who was afraid to let her seven-year-old boy go to the men's room by himself because "the woods are full of perverts."

Your suggestion to button-hole a kindly gentleman on his way in and ask him to watch over the kid was idiotic. Please explain how a mother is supposed to pick out the "kindly gentleman" from the sweet old geezer who is as queer as a $3 bill?

More realistic advice would have been to tell the boy, "Go in alone and if anyone tries to molest you, scream your head off." If he doesn't know what "molest" means, she should tell him. Sex education should start early. —

Louisville Reader

Dear Lou: You may have a point, but I doubt that any geezer, no matter how funny, would take such a chance with the kid's mother standing outside the door. Your suggestion that young boys be warned against molesters and that they yell their heads off is excellent. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am engaged to a girl who is giving me a hard time. She says I'm too possessive and overly suspicious. She doesn't act like a person who is about to be married. You be the judge.

In the last three weeks, Hilda has "disappeared" four times. When I call her apartment, her roommate says, "I don't know where she is. Maybe she's at her mother's." I call her mother and she's not there. When Hilda turns up after two or three days and I ask where she's been, she says, "Don't be such a male chauvinist pig."

I paid $255 for an engagement ring. We plan to be married in three months. But I worry about a girl who stays lost for two and three days and then refuses to account for herself.

Does marriage settle people down? What do you think? —

Once Burnt, Twice Shy

Dear Burnt: I think you'd better prepare for a life of grief if you marry a girl who specializes in disappearing and refuses to account for her absence. Don't expect her to settle down merely because she has a wedding ring on her finger. The engagement ring doesn't seem to mean much.

Dear Ann Landers: I always thought your column was to read — not to write to. But here I am, looking for help.

I'm a boy 16, with lots of friends but no friendships.

No one ever calls me to go anywhere. I'm always the one who does the calling. Usually the guys I call have "other plans." I don't know if their excuses are legitimate or not.

My parents are always pushing me to go out, but I hate to go alone and I can't seem to get anyone to go with me. Maybe I'm a born loner. Do other people feel as I do or am I some kind of freak? Please help me. —

No Name

Dear N.N.: There are millions of people like you. In fact, popular teenagers sometimes get the idea they have no friends. It's part of growing up. You say "the guys" usually have other plans. There's another sex. Girls. Have you tried them? I'll bet at least a dozen who go to your school would be thrilled to get a phone call from you.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long-self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Devious washers

A woman in Texas wrote that she stopped reading the column for awhile because frankly she was worried about me.

Not only was I whimpering about washers that ate one out of each pair of socks, but I had publicly stated there was a Loch Ness washer monster that scrambled everyone's laundry and you often ended up with a pair of shorts you had never seen before in your life.

Last week she wrote, "For several weeks my husband has been forced to wear a pair of women's support pantyhose, size medium although he is six feet tall and weighs 175 pounds. They were with my pantyhose I had washed on gentle cycle, but THEY WERE NOT MINE AND WHO ELSE'S COULD THEY BE?"

Good grief, woman, get hold of yourself.

I could take the easy way out and put you in touch with a reader in Portland who, last December, lost a pair of women's support pantyhose and in its place got a maternity top (she's 73) and contact the women in Palo Alto who lost her maternity top and ended up with a Marine jumpsuit, but it's time consuming and it's futile.

The plain and simple truth is washers were never meant to be domesticated.

I never see a Frankenstein movie but that I don't visualize a washer on a table in a laboratory . . . with lights flashing, test tubes bubbling and slowly the washer begins to pulsate and the dial turns slowly to pre-soak, the lid begins to jiggle, and a monster is born.

A monster with a mind of its own who can fade things pink in an all-white load, put lint on socks that are washed alone, and know the exact day when the warranty expires.

Day by day I see the washers of this country getting smarter and smarter. I saw one the other day that is programmed to pre-soak, release the bleach, add the soap, and cut loose the softener. The only thing it needs a human for is to tear the machine apart looking for the mates to all the socks.

I haven't told this to a living soul, but a friend of mine who always enjoyed a wonderful relationship with her washer, dropped in a cross-your-heart garment last week that came out with only one side left.

Her husband (a practical man) suggested if half of it was missing, that's all she put in. Her washer repairman didn't want to talk about it.

Moral of the story: Never turn your back on your washers. You never know when they'll go native!

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home, Stroudsburg.

Academy accepting applications

STROUDSBURG — The United States Coast Guard Academy has announced it is accepting and processing applications for appointment as Cadet, U.S. Coast Guard, Class of 1980. This year for the first time applications are being accepted from women.

Appointments to the Coast Guard Academy are awarded solely on the basis of an annual nationwide competition with no congressional appointments or geographical quotas.

Applications for appointment must be submitted to the Director of Admissions, U.S. Coast Guard Academy, prior to December 15, 1975. Candidates must arrange to participate in either the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or American College Testing Assessment (ACT) prior to or including the December, 1975 administration.

The competition for appointment as Cadet is based on the candidate's high school rank.

Eastburg Girl Scouts readying for new year

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Girl Scout troops will hold reorganization meetings beginning Tuesday and running through Tuesday, Sept. 23.

Girls and a parent or guardian are requested to attend the reorganization meeting and bring their registration fee.

All girls in grades one through three are eligible to become Brownies; girls in grades four through six can become Juniors; grades seven through nine, Cadettes.

Troop reorganization meetings are as follows:

Brownies — Troop 358, St. Matthews's School auditorium, Tuesday, Sept. 9 at 7 p.m.; Troops 318, 322 and 329, at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 17 at the J.M. Hill School; Troop 344, at 2:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 17 in the Middle Smithfield School; Troops 302 and 300, at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Sept.

Met-Ed surcharge increases

STROUDSBURG — Fuel adjustment charges to Metropolitan Edison Company customers for September will continue near the figure that it has maintained throughout the summer. The charge for September will be 7.3 mills per kilowatt-hour, up slightly from the 7.25 mills of August.

The fuel adjustment, which fluctuates up or down monthly according to the cost of fossil fuel used to generate the electricity, will mean an increase of only 2.5 cents in September bills over August for the average residential customer using 500 kilowatt hours a month, a company spokesman said.

The fact that Met-Ed's fuel adjustment charges have held between 7¼ and 7½ mills per Kwh all summer is attributed to the steady operations of the Three Mile Island Nuclear Station, which has been in commercial service since September 2, 1974, he said. The nuclear unit has produced at an average of 83½ per cent of its capacity since then — one of the best capacity records for nuclear plants in the country today the spokesman added.

"I'm sure it pleases the customers for us to be able to hold the line on the fuel adjustment charges and, certainly, Met-Ed can be proud of the records established at Three Mile Island; however, once again, we have to recognize that there is no such thing as a free lunch," Ernest W. Schleicher, Met-Ed vice president of consumer affairs, cautioned.

Schleicher explained: "Met-Ed's July, 1974 rate request, which has been delayed indefinitely by the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC) provided for two important factors that would affect customer bills — an energy clause and inclusion of the costs associated with the Three Mile Island as part of the company's base rates. It's ironic that nuclear generation is the prime factor in keeping the fuel adjustment charges to the customer down; yet, there is no provision in the present rate structure to pay for the costs of that station.

E-burg to honor Kist

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg School Board members have given their approval to honor athletic director Jack Kist at the East Stroudsburg-Wilson football Sept. 20.

At a recent meeting, the board passed a resolution to present Kist with a plaque and create a scholarship fund in his honor.

The plaque — to commend his "outstanding leadership" as a teacher, coach and athletic director — will be presented during halftime.

The board also created the "John (Jack) Kist Outstanding Athletes Scholarship Award." For the time being, the award will consist of a plaque with the name of a district athlete inscribed on it each year.

The plaque will be displayed in the school.

Dr. Robert M. Bookbinder, district superintendent, said eventually money will be raised to create a scholarship that will be given to the outstanding athlete each year.

The board decided against naming the district's athletic complex — Memorial football stadium, the Tom Waring gymnasium and the baseball field after Kist — because the gymnasium already has a name and the district has committed itself to naming the baseball field after the Litts family.

Kist, who coached East Stroudsburg's football team from 1948 to 1965, will be honored after the Sept. 20 game at a testimonial at the Penn Stroud Hilton Inn, Stroudsburg.

Back-to-school time again for Monroe firefighters

MARSHALLS CREEK — The Marshalls Creek Fire Company will host the 1975 Monroe County Firemen's Assn. fire school Saturday and Sunday, September 20 and 21. The school will be held on the fire company grounds in Marshalls Creek.

Four regular classes have been scheduled for the two day session, with a special program being set up on hazardous chemicals.

Stroud Township Fire Chief Raymond Silver, spokesman for the county association, said the section on hazardous chemicals will be taught by John Scannell of the J.T. Baxter Co., of Phillipsburg, N.J.

Firemen will be made acquainted with the types of chemicals that can possibly be spilled while being transported through Monroe County.

relaying, ladders and ropes and a course on masks and ventilation.

Classes will be taught both days during the fire school to enable firemen to take more than one, Silver said.

On Sunday, at 1 p.m. a special class on women's role in firefighting and a special first aid course will be taught.

The cost for the fire school is two dollars per fireman. Dinners, for $3.50, will be served also.

Richard McDonough is the host fire chief. Instructors include John Turner of Shaftertown, William Balliet of Whitehall, William Harris of East Stroudsburg, Kenneth Miller of East Stroudsburg and Silver.

Police blotter

Hit and run driver surrenders

STROUDSBURG — Frank Flaherty of Stroudsburg, R.D. 3 turned himself in to Stroudsburg police Sunday and confessed to a hit and run accident at a Ninth Street gas station at 2:25 a.m. Saturday.

Flaherty, driving a Packaging Corp. of America-owned truck, allegedly knocked down a gas pump and a light standard at John Valterscamp's Texaco Station, 30 N. Ninth St.

Police said Flaherty will be charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

There is no estimate of damages.

Police investigate hit-run accident

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg police are investigating a hit and run accident that occurred at 10:50 a.m. Saturday at 122 Park Avenue.

Someone driving a 1969 Ford LTD ran up on the sidewalk, hit a tree and ripped up the front lawn at the Harry Howells' residence, causing $200 damage.

Car struck

STROUDSBURG — A car owned by William and Barbara Strunk of 507 Thomas St. parked near their home was struck by an unknown vehicle at 3:15 a.m. Saturday and received about $50 damage. Police are continuing the investigation.

Man injured in crash

TOBYHANNA — Daniel E. Smith, 21, of 332 Spring St., Dunmore is in satisfactory condition at the Scranton Community Medical Center after a 6:30 a.m. Saturday accident on I-380.

Smith and his passenger, Michael Scrinali, 23, of 1324 E. Drinker St., Dunmore were pinned in his car for 20 minutes before they could be rescued by Coolbaugh Township ambulance.

State police at Fern Ridge reported Smith was headed west at a high rate of speed when he apparently fell asleep, drifted across the roadway and back, struck an embankment, flew 70 feet through the air and flipped over.

Police car damaged

STROUDSBURG — A Stroud Township police car driven by Patrolman Wilbur Hay received $75 worth of damage in a 7:45 a.m. Saturday accident.

Hay was unhurt.

The accident occurred when the patrolman was driving on N. Fifth Street and swerved on wet pavement to try to avoid hitting another vehicle. He hit a tree instead.

Two men injured

HONESDALE — Two Lake Ariel men were slightly injured in a 2:30 a.m. Saturday accident when a deer ran out in front of their westbound car on Rte. 652.

Kenneth Nelson, 18, of Lake Ariel, R.D. 1 and Robert Christopher, 17, of the same address were treated and released at Wayne Memorial Hospital, according to state police.

Eastburg impact report finds no renewal hangups

EAST STROUDSBURG — An assessment of the environmental impact of East Stroudsburg's Community Development project contends no adverse impacts will result from the changes planned.

The Environmental Review Record, recently completed by the borough's consultants, Mullin & Loneragan Associates, Inc. of Philadelphia, is now being submitted to the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

When approved, the federal department will release the $497,000 it has granted East Stroudsburg for the project.

The report considers the impacts the project can be expected to have on the environment and the effect the environment will have on the project.

The report outlines the Crystal Street Business Area project as follows:

— Acquisition and demolition of approximately seven substandard properties in general area of Courtland Street and Crystal Street between Washington Street and Ananokink Street.

Safeguards against improper demolition include barricading area for safety, traffic controls and warning lights, notification of utilities for safe termination of service lines, notification of neighbors, keeping dusty areas moist, filling in basements with soil and other precautions.

Acquisition of the vacant Erie-Lackawanna passenger station for eventual restoration and use.

The railroad station has been identified as a qualified historic building in accordance with the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. The station was called the Delaware and Lackawanna Railroad Station from 1883 to 1915. Plans call for restoration of the station as a visual focal point in the rehabilitation scheme.

— Provision of public improvements on Crystal Street.

The report states there will be no significant impact on the environment in the first year of the program. Beautification improvements such as planters, benches and new sidewalks will have a limited environmental effect.

— Rehabilitation. This also does not significantly alter the environment or create any significant impact.

— Reuse of cleared area. Interim use of land area cleared by demolition will be off-street parking. Vacant land will be landscaped and kept up to avoid debris problems.

The report also includes special guidelines for rehabilitation of housing such as insulation and weather stripping for energy conservation and noise insulation where railroad and traffic noise levels are high.

After HUD receives the report, it must wait 15 working days for any public comments or other response before approving the release of funds to the community.

The policy adoption was to meet a requirement by the state Board of Education that all school districts have a policy on maintaining and distributing student records by September, 1975.

Consent to have information collected can be given individually by the parents and-or the child or representationally by the Board of Education.

in situations such as aptitude and achievement testing.

The policy divides student records into three categories: — Category A includes minimal data needed for school purposes, such as parents' names and addresses, birthdate, grades, achievement test scores and attendance records.

These records are to be kept for at least 100 years, and their validity can be challenged by a student or his parents.

— Category B includes "verified information of clear importance, but not absolutely necessary, over time, in helping the child or in protecting others."

est test results, health data, family background, "systematically gathered teacher or counselor ratings and observations," and verified reports of behavior.

The school district will "eliminate unnecessary Category B data at periodic intervals." The records can be maintained, however, anonymously for research purposes.

— Category C records include "potentially useful information but not yet verified or clearly needed beyond the immediate present."

Specifically, it can include legal or clinical results from personality tests and unevaluated reports from teachers or counselors.

Residents fear a Vietnam in Mideast

By DEBORAH ENYEART

Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Memories of American involvement in Vietnam are apparently too strong in the minds of many Monroe Countians for them to sanction proposed civilian surveillance in the Middle East.

Over two thirds of the people polled Sunday said they didn't want Americans to become involved in Mideast peace-keeping plans.

A peace agreement signed Labor Day by Egypt and Israel and negotiated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger provides for up to 200 American civilians to monitor three manned and three unmanned missile detection posts.

A fourth of the people polled said the arrangement reminded them of the way America became involved in the Vietnam conflict.

Over half of those questioned suggested the United Nations (UN) or another country should provide the technicians to monitor the equipment.

"No way. We went through this once before," replied James P. Kelly, of New Jersey, referring to Vietnam. "The U.N. should handle it. That's what it's supposedly there for."

Ed McGuire, of Stroudsburg, said the technicians shouldn't be just Americans and added that Vietnam is "the thing that scares everybody."

"It should be a little from this country and a little from that. If they're going to have a U.N., this is what they should have it for," he added.

"We shouldn't send Americans at all. It's the way it started in Vietnam. First it was a few advisors and before we knew it we had a million men there," stated Mr. L.

Baker, of Stroudsburg.

"This country gets mixed up in too much of that stuff," he added.

Mrs. Matilda Martin, a summer resident of Bartonville, also agreed Americans shouldn't be in the neutral zone.

"We've lost too many boys before. Why should we always be the donkeys? It's always our boys who are being lost. I really think they (other countries) should help," she stated.

Other area residents thought Americans should take care of problems in America first.

"Americans should stay home and take care of Americans. There are a lot of unemployed and a lot of elderly. We should do something for America first," said an East Stroudsburg woman who didn't want to be identified.

Mrs. Frank Doughty, of Bushkill, was opposed to the American presence. "We've definitely been involved in too many foreign countries," she said.

"No, charity begins at home," added Mrs. Thomas Dowd, also of Bushkill.

Mrs. Oriole Williams, of Saylorsburg, felt there were enough problems in America needing attention and said it would probably be better for the U.N. to handle the surveillance.

Bangor board, faculty may meet

BANGOR — Bangor Area School Board members will meet at 8 p.m. tonight to try to come up with a proposal to end a strike by the 162-member Bangor Area Education Assn. (BAEA). The work stoppage goes into its sixth day today.

Although both sides have not met since the strike began Sept. 3, a negotiations session tentatively has been scheduled for Tuesday, according to chief board negotiator Clarence Overfield.

Whether the meeting will be held, Overfield said, depends on whether the board can re-draft its original proposal the teachers rejected last Wednesday.

"Following the regular meeting (tonight)," he said, "the board will meet to go over items not resolved in negotiations. I presume we will meet Tuesday night with the teachers. It isn't definite, though."

"We have to go over a whole list of proposals that aren't solved. Both sides have to give a little."

BAEA President Fred Bartosh could not be reached Sunday to confirm the Tuesday meeting.

Board members and teachers are scheduled to air their differences at a meeting with taxpayers at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Bangor Senior High School, Bangor.

Taxpayers are interested in hearing why the board and teachers can't negotiate a new one-year contract.

As of a week ago when negotiations broke down after a seven-hour session, teachers and the board could not agree on six items. These are the items Overfield said the board must reconsider tonight.

The board has offered teachers a $1,000 per teacher salary hike for 1975-76. Teachers said that would still make them the lowest paid teachers in Northampton County.

BAEA and the board also cannot agree on payment of an employees' dental plan, severance pay and the length of the school day.

Chemicals drained into lagoon

BARTONSVILLE — An unknown trucker dumped 9,000 gallons of potentially toxic chemicals into a drainage lagoon behind the Union 76 Pocono Truck Stop at about 3 a.m. Friday, according to state police from Swiftwater.

Truck stop manager William Fry said it will cost between $40,000 and $45,000 to have the lagoon pumped out and the chemicals disposed of properly.

Fry said between 120,000 and 130,000 gallons of water and chemicals were pumped from the lagoon and sent to a neutralizing plant in Dover, N.J.

He said the lagoon should be cleaned out by this morning.

"We were fortunate it was caught right away and there was no damage to Pocono Creek," Fry said.

The state Department of Environmental Resources and Stroud Township firemen were called to the scene when the illegal dumping was discovered.

A Marshalls Creek chemical laboratory has tentatively identified three different chemicals in the material dumped: organic phosphate, aliphatic aldehyde and nitrobenzene.

Police reported one man was overcome by the fumes and treated by his own doctor.

Police are continuing their investigation of the incident. If the perpetrator is caught, he will be charged with "causing or risking a catastrophe," police said.

The truck stop manager said stricter precautions will be taken in the future to prevent a recurrence

Eastburg sets policy on releasing student records

EAST STROUDSBURG — A policy to protect student records from being seen by unauthorized people has been enacted by the East Stroudsburg School Board.

The policy adoption was to meet a requirement by the state Board of Education that all school districts have a policy on maintaining and distributing student records by September, 1975.

Consent to have information collected can be given individually by the parents and-or the child or representationally by the Board of Education.

Representational consent can be given by the school board when it is not possible to get consent from all parents.

est test results, health data, family background, "systematically gathered teacher or counselor ratings and observations," and verified reports of behavior.

The school district will "eliminate unnecessary Category B data at periodic intervals." The records can be maintained, however, anonymously for research purposes.

Category C records include "potentially useful information but not yet verified or clearly needed beyond the immediate present."

Specifically, it can include legal or clinical results from personality tests and unevaluated reports from teachers or counselors.

If unevaluated information is kept for more than a year, parents are to have an opportunity to challenge this decision.

School psychologists, social workers and counselors are allowed to keep personal files containing "notes, transcripts of interviews, clinical diagnoses and other memory aids for their own use in counseling pupils."

These records are considered the personal property of the professional and are to be

"guarded by the rules given above in addition to those dictated by professional ethics."

The policy states that the school may release information from A and B without parental or student consent to other school officials, the secretary of education and officials of other school systems where the student may enroll.

Other people can't receive information without written consent from parents, who specify what is released to whom and receive a copy, unless there is a court order.

Category C information can't be released without a court order.

married, only his consent is needed to release records.

Under these conditions the student can also deny his parents the right to his records.

The policy states a student, his parents or legal counsel can see Category A records; parents may see B; and students with parental permission can see C.

Sipe steps in for Phipps, rallies Browns past Giants

SEATTLE (UPI) — Reserve quarterback Brian Sipe hit 15 of 18 passes to bring the Cleveland Browns from behind for a 24-20 NFL exhibition victory Sunday over the previously unbeaten New York Giants.

Sipe, who entered the game in the second quarter for starter Mike Phipps, put the Browns ahead for good with a seven-yard scoring toss to reserve tight end Gary Parris in the third period.

The Giants opened the scoring with a 37-yard field goal by George Hunt and added a touchdown on a 71-yard punt return by Rodney Colbert to begin the second quarter.

The Browns countered with an 84-yard drive capped by a three-yard touchdown run by Larry Poole with just under six minutes left in the half. Sipe sparked that drive by completing six passes for 56 yards.

Hunt closed the first half scoring by drilling a 53-yard field goal for the Giants with just over a minute to play, lifting New York to a 13-7 lead at intermission.

The third quarter was all Cleveland. In addition to Sipe's seven-yard pass to Parris, Don Cockroft kicked a 34-yard field goal.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Norm Snead, named the San Francisco 49er's No. 1 quarterback earlier in the week, fired a pair of touchdown passes to Bob Hayes, triggering a 44-10 National Football League exhibition rout of the Denver Broncos Sunday.

After Snead hit Hayes on scoring bombs of 18 and 31 yards early in the game, the 49ers defense forced three turnovers in a 5:15 span of the second period, leading to 10 more points enroute to a 30-10 halftime lead.

Denver, now 2-3, went 80 yards following the opening kickoff. Veteran quarterback Charlie Johnson made his 1975 debut and hit Bill Van Heusen with a 30-yard touchdown pass before the 49ers, also 2-3, took over and dominated the game.

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Leon McQuay scored three touchdowns in the third period, one on a 101-yard kickoff return, as the New England Patriots outran the San Diego Chargers 31-24 Sunday night in a NFL exhibition game.

The victory, which brought the Patriots to 3-2 in preseason play, cost New England the services of quarterback Jim Plunkett for three to four weeks. The fifth-year pro suffered a separated shoulder during the second period.

Watson's $50,000 richer after winning Series title

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — British Open champion Tom Watson, failing to fold coming down the stretch, shot a one-over-par 71 Sunday to capture the 14th annual World Series of Golf and its $50,000 first prize.

Watson, 26, of Kansas City, Mo., finished with a 36-hole score of 140, two shots in front of Masters and PGA champion Jack Nicklaus, five ahead of Canadian Open winner Tom Weiskopf and seven better than U.S. Open winner Lou Graham.

Nicklaus, who was seeking his fifth World Series of Golf victory in 10 appearances at the par 70, 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club, had to settle for his sixth runnerup finish after a final round 70.

Weiskopf, who got into this year's WSG by winning the first alternate event for qualifying, the Canadian Open, also shot a 70 Sunday and finished at 145.

Graham, who didn't get his first birdie in the two-day nationally televised event until the 32nd hole, shot a final round 71 for 147.

Watson, who started the day three shots in front of Nicklaus, five ahead of Weiskopf and six ahead of Graham, never led by less than two shots and had a three-stroke margin most of the way.

On both the 14th and 15th holes, Nicklaus had golden opportunities to cut at least one and possibly two shots off Watson's lead, but the former Stanford University star was up to the task.

green, while Nicklaus' second shot was about 15 feet to the left of the pin.

With a possible two-shot swing staring him in the face, however, the cool Watson blasted out eight feet from the hole and sank it for a par four. Nicklaus' putt appeared to be in but slid just by the left edge of the cup.

On the next hole, the tough 225-yard par 3 15th, Watson again found the sand and Nicklaus, desperate to mount a charge, hit a two iron 11 feet from the hole.

Again Watson got it up and down in two from the sand and Nicklaus' putt for a birdie missed.

Watson, making the most of his first World Series appearance, just about locked it up with a routine par on the 625-yard par 5 16th when Nicklaus hit his third shot over the back of the green and took a bogey six. Watson parred the final two holes.

Green rallies

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Veteran Hubert Green, frustrated in four previous tries here, fired a six-under 64 Sunday for a four-round Southern Open record 264 to overtake John Schroeder and win the $100,000 tournament.

Green's final total for the four-day tournament was three strokes less than the old record, which helped young Johnny Miller's rise to PGA fame in 1971.

Green finished three shots below the struggling Schroeder, who had dominated the first three rounds at the Green Island Country Club.

He trailed Schroeder by three strokes at the turn Sunday but then reeled off four birdies on the next five holes and also birdied the finishing hole to give him his 64. That equalled the tournament record 64 that Mason Rudolph shot in the final round in 1970 when he won the inaugural Southern Open, then known as the Green Island Open.

Schroeder, from La Jolla, Calif., had led or shared the lead in this year's tournament since the opening round Thursday when he fashioned a 65 to tie early-finishing Mac McLendon of Birmingham.

He started Sunday's final round with a stroke advantage over Green, and three shots ahead of Bill Rogers, the former University of Houston star. Rogers fell to a 71 Sunday and finished fourth, a stroke behind Terry Dill.

The victory was the first of the season for Green and brought him a first-place check for $20,000.

Mann coasts to victory

DALLAS (UPI) — Carol Mann shot her third straight sub-par round Sunday and fought off an early challenge by Sandra Palmer to coast to a five-stroke victory in the Dallas Women's Open.

It was the fourth tour triumph of the year for Miss Mann, who, despite her duties as president of the LPGA's executive board, is having her best year since 1969.

Miss Mann shot a final round 71 over the Brookhaven Country Club course for a 54-hole total of eight-under 208. That was five shots better than Miss Palmer, who could manage only a 72 Sunday.

Spartans finish third in tourney

Special to The Record

BUIES CREEK, N.C. — Dick Quaresimo scored with 12:33 left to play Saturday night to enable Notre Dame to capture third place in the Campbell College Invitational Tournament with a 2-1 victory over Camp LeJeune.

Quaresimo, who was selected to the all-tournament team along with Spartans' halfback Al Adelmann, outmaneuvered two defenders with the ball and fired his game-winning shot from about 18 yards out.

The Spartans had tied the game at 1-1 with about seven minutes gone in the second half when Dan Romansky took Tony MacIntire's crossing pass and booted it home from approximately eight yards out.

Camp LeJeune opened the game's scoring with 17:19 gone in the first period on Steve As-bury's goal from about 20 yards out.

Spartan goalie Kent Darlington, who filled in when regular Bob Gibson suffered a jammed finger in Friday's 9-1 loss to Ravenscroft, was credited with seven saves.

Ravenscroft, the second-ranked team in North Carolina, emerged as the tournament champion with a 3-0 victory over Greenfield.

Orantes upsets Connors to win U.S. Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — "He was unbelievable," said Jimmy Connors of Manuel Orantes, and that Manuel was Sunday in his straight set victory over Connors 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 to take Jimmy's American title.

How unbelievable was this 26-year-old Spaniard?

Manolo had whipped the world's No. 1 player in one hour and 57 minutes after he had come back from 0-5 and three match points in the third set to defeat Guillermo Vilas in five sets and three hours and 44 minutes Saturday night.

Admitting that he used tactics similar to that employed by Arthur Ashe when Arthur whipped Jimmy in the Wimbledon final, Orantes said he had to "break Jimmy's rhythm. I knew he couldn't play consistently from the baseline. I knew he liked to hit hard and attack, so I used soft shots. Coming up to the soft ball, Jimmy couldn't get the power or the angles and I could pass him."

Connors agreed, saying, "I didn't think it possible for him to continually fire those passing shots but he did it all the way."

Orantes said he had not gotten to bed until 3 a.m. after the miraculous victory over Vilas, but added he had slept eight hours and "was not concerned if I had to get four or five sets today. I was so excited after beating Vilas, I couldn't feel tired today."

If there was one stroke that was a key to his victory he commented, it was the lob which he used to near perfection to thwart Jimmy's rushes to the net.

Connors had swept the Australian, Wimbledon and Forest Hills title a year ago. Now he has lost all three—but to different challengers, John Newcombe in four sets in Australia in January, Ashe in four sets at Wimbledon and now in three here to Orantes.

Chris Evert, who won the women's title for the first time Saturday by defeating Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, watched the match from a seat in the box in almost total silence.

Orantes, a 26-year-old native of Granada, was not given much of a chance by tennis experts because he had never won a major championship before and because he did not get off court until just before midnight Saturday after an epic five set semifinal victory over Guillermo Vilas of Argentina. Orantes, down 2-1 in sets and love in the fourth set, was forced to serve five match points against Vilas and it was thought it would be too much for him to perform a second miracle just 12 hours later.

When Orantes hit a forehand down the line into the corner on match point, he turned to his wife Virginia in a court-side box and sank to his knees. He then saluted the Spaniards in the crowd before going over to shake Connors by the hand.

The 5-foot-9½ Spaniard, a stocky 160 pounds, won the championship in the style of Chris Evert: he never left the baseline. He passed Connors as Jimmy tried to get to the net, and when Connors was at midcourt he would find Orantes' lob too much to handle.

Connors said after the match, "He was unbelievable. I did not believe a man could hit passing shots for an entire match the way he did, but unfortunately for me he did."

Orantes, became the second Spaniard to win the championship, succeeding where Manuel Santana triumphed in 1965. Orantes' victory was so popular that several hundred fans invaded the grey clay court to acclaim him.

Orantes, on receiving his winning check of $25,000 and an automobile, told the crowd: "It is a great honor to have my name inscribed on the U.S. Open trophy. To win this tournament you have to be lucky and play well. I played well and I was lucky, especially last night in my semifinal against Guillermo (Vilas)."

Orantes moved into the final almost unnoticed until his epic semifinal victory against Vilas. But he was the clay court player in form. He won the U.S. Clay Courts title in Indianapolis and was successful in the Canadian Open while he also won the national clay court championships of Britain, Germany and Sweden before he came to the U.S. for the summer circuit.

The little man, who rested much of the winter because of back trouble, defeated Connors for only the second time in eight attempts to run his season money winnings to $130,146.

The match was a classic—Orantes employed deft dinks, chips, drop shots and his devastating lob to brunt Connors' power game. Connors said he would play the way he had been taught, but his serve and volley game was built for the grass courts which were dug up after he destroyed Australia's Ken Rosewall in losing only two games in last year's final.

Each time Connors got to the net, a passing shot would whistle by his ears. The high bounce of the ball caused him trouble as he tried to approach the net. He dumped a lot of balls into the net on his approach shots.

Connors, who has won six tournaments of minor consequence this year, received $12,000 for his loss to bring his season total $521,047, but the bulk of this money was earned in his winning challenge matches in Las Vegas against former champions, John Newcombe and Rod Laver.

Czech net star defects to U.S.

FOREST HILLS (UPI) — Martina Navratilova insists her defection from Czechoslovakia to the United States is not motivated by political convictions, but solely by her desire to fulfill her tennis ambitions.

But the decision was forced upon her by a refusal to accept the political domination of the Czech tennis federation which claimed total subjugation from her as to where she would, or would not, play.

"My decision," the chunky 18-year-old girl said Sunday, "was based on my concern for my tennis future. Politics did not enter into it."

Yet her driving ambition is to become the No. 1 women's tennis player in the world—an ambition which many believe possible.

Here in the U.S. Open, she lost a tense 6-4, 6-4 semifinal to her closest American friend, Chris Evert. Two critical calls went against her and the second so shattered Martina that she lost nine straight points at the conclusion of the match.

Miss Navratilova said she had begun thinking about defecting in April when she was playing at Amelia Island, Fla.

While there, the Czech federation ordered her home and those close to the tennis scene felt Prague had heard she was becoming too "Americanized."

That could be true for Martina obviously enjoyed the freedom of movement, the casual approach to life and American cars, television and food. From a fairly slight 123 pounds, a diet of American hamburgers and milk shakes were sending her weight quite high.

But Martina was also making money at an astonishing rate as the only real, if remote, threat to Miss Evert on the Virginia Slims circuit. She twice defeated Miss Evert, but lost seven times. However, the second place money she was rolling up was in capitalistic proportions.

Coming into Forest Hills, Martina had won $134,568. Of that, she had to return 20 per cent to the Czech federation but the rest, less U.S. taxes, was all hers.

She returned home to Revnice, a suburb of Prague, after losing the Amelia Island final to Miss Evert. Before leaving, she said she was thinking of buying a home and a car and when she arrived home, Martina told her family of the possibility of her living in America. Her mother, Jana, told her to think it over carefully but that the decision had to be hers alone. "It's your life," her mother told her.

ENROUTE TO AN UPSET — Manuel Orantes of Spain smashes a shot to Jimmy Connors during Sunday's men's finals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships. Orantes polished off Connors in three straight sets to win the men's singles title from the defending champion. (UPI)

Maryland gives its fans reason to be optimistic

By United Press International

Those two nationally-ranked teams opened their 1975 college football campaigns Saturday, but while the 14th-ranked Terrapins showed strength and style in crushing Villanova 41-0, the Nittany Lions were forced to scramble in an unfamiliar manner to defeat upstart Temple, 26-25.

Maryland, which won the Atlantic Coast Conference title last season, was not expected to field as strong a club this season because of the loss of 16 starters, including quarterback Bob Avellini and All-America defensive tackle Randy White.

But, the Terrapins unveiled a 19-year-old sophomore quarterback—Mark Manges—who just may make Maryland fans forget Avellini before the season is over. Manges set a school record with four touchdown passes in his first start and would have had five if not for a clipping penalty.

Manges hit sophomore Vince Kinney on scoring passes of 46 and 41 yards, connected with fullback Tim Wilson for a 23-yard touchdown and hooked up on a 38-yarder to John Schultz. "I can't think of what a sophomore could do that he didn't do today," said Terps' coach, Jerry Claiborne.

Manges, who admitted he did "a few things wrong," helped the Terps roll up 575 yards in total offense to spoil the coaching debut of Villanova's Dick Bedesem.

"I hope it was our strength and not their weakness," said Manges, referring to the Wildcats' repeated breakdowns in the secondary. "We'll find out next week."

The Terps begin a three-week road test next Saturday night against Tennessee in Knoxville, and as Claiborne was quick to point out, "Tennessee is not Villanova."

Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State must figure there is big trouble ahead for his club if Temple could pose such a problem. Paterno admittedly was concerned that his team was not ready going into their season opener, and once again the astute coach turned out to be right.

Temple, which has been slowly building into an Eastern power under coach Wayne Hardin, pushed the Nittany Lions all over the field, outgaining them 21-12 in first downs and outgaining them 412 yard to 201 in total offense. But, a 66-yard run by Woody Petchel with only 3:48 remaining set up a three-yard scoring run by Duane Taylor that paved the way for the Penn State victory.

Taylor's run was followed by a successful two-point conversion attempt which proved to be the winning margin as temple scored a safety with less than 30 seconds to play when Penn State decided to play it safe and not risk a long run-back.

With Stanford next on the schedule and Ohio State to follow, things do not look particularly rosy for Penn State at the moment.

In other games Saturday, Baylor whipped Mississippi 20-10, North Carolina State trimmed East Carolina 26-3, Mississippi State defeated

Miami's offense drops a notch

By United Press International

In any "normal" year, the Miami Dolphins would overpower and physically punish the Chicago Bears—sending them back to the Windy City an overwhelmed football team.

But 1975 is no normal year, as for the first time since the turn of the decade the Dolphins are without the horses that pull the cart, namely Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick. The two are playing this season in the World Football League and Don Shula is forced to scramble for running backs to fill their void.

And the Miami offense reflects this step down in caliber.

The Dolphins lacked the precision ball control of seasons past Saturday night as they downed the Bears 21-10, relying heavily on Mercury Morris for both the outside speed and inside power. Even with Bob Griese at quarterback for three quarters, Miami failed to pound its superiority into the Bears.

The Miami defense put seven of the points on the board—scoring on a 54-yard interception return by Charlie Babb—leaving the offense a narrow 14-10 winner over the meek Bears. Morris scored on a 25-yard run and Griese passed to Nat Moore for a 50-yard touchdown to round out the Miami scoring. While the Dolphins were struggling on the ground, the Bears were flashing their No. 1 draft choice for the first time this season, Walter Payton of Jackson State, and he averaged five yards in 12 first half carries. Payton, the first running back taken in the college draft, had been sidelined until Saturday with an infected elbow.

In other games Saturday, Cincinnati clipped Detroit 22-14, Kansas City mauled Green Bay 31-3, St. Louis swatted Minnesota 13-6, Buffalo nipped Atlanta 16-14, Pittsburgh eluded New Orleans 24-13, and Los Angeles routed Philadelphia 35-0.

The Bengals celebrated head coach Paul Brown's 67th birthday by rocking Detroit, handing the Lions their first setback in two tries at their new $55 million stadium. Rookie halfback Stan Fritts startled the Lions by throwing a nine-yard touchdown pass and quarterback Ken Anderson hit a 14-yard TD pass to go along with Dave Green's three field goals of 35, 37 and 19 yards.

Ford takes criticism in stride

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: Unlike some of his predecessors, President Ford takes criticism in stride. When he is angry he keeps his temper under control. When he does let off steam his staffers know it.

Talking to television reporters at Newport, R.I., last weekend, Ford said, "If you worry about everything people say about you, you lose your eye on the ball."

Ford made the remarks after he was asked about an article which author John Hershey wrote in the New York Times magazine after spending a week with Ford. Hershey had done similar pieces in the past on other presidents. His report on Ford was analytical and thorough, but he indicated he found a lack of compassion in Ford.

"He actually, virtually lived here," Ford said of Hershey.

He had permitted the author to be present for most of his meetings except for those with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on national security matters.

The President also heard similar criticism from 12 Republican senators who place themselves in the moderate-to-liberal category. It was a frank discussion. The senators urged Ford to permit a greater liberal influence in his policy making and political campaigning. Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey told Ford that he "hasn't been doing his compassionate nature justice."

The senators specifically said that in stressing budget and fiscal responsibility and in vetoing new social programs, Ford's image was coming through as conservative.

Asked how Ford had taken it, Case told reporters afterwards, "The great thing about Mr. Ford is that he accepts with complete frankness and complete lack of any kind of unhappy feeling the most sincere and earnest expressions of criticism, especially when they are of a constructive nature and particularly from people he regards as friends."

"He accepted this not only in good spirit, but I think he agreed it was a good idea."

Case added, "I don't think that anybody should expect the President to change his views or to change his basic approach. I think it is necessary for him to do what hasn't always been necessary, perhaps for him to do in his role as candidate for the House of Representatives, to make it clear this approach is in his judgment designed to bring about the best result for all the people, including those out of work, including those worried about losing jobs, even though they may still have them, and including those on fixed incomes, attempting to meet constantly rising costs of living."

White House chief photographer David Hume Kennerly may feel he is a moving target. There have been news items cropping up that Kennerly is out of favor with President

Ford.

But Kennerly's close friends insist that his relationship with Ford is still "very close."

Kennerly had gone to the Middle East with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for his last round of shuttle diplomacy. During the trip, informants said that Kennerly was in contact with the White House and talked to Mrs. Ford several times.

In addition to being treated like a son by Ford, Kennerly is also a social companion to Jack Ford, 23, and the President's son spends a lot of time at Kennerly's Georgetown apartment.

The Nixon girls, Tricia and Julie Eisenhower were recently seen shopping in the maternity department in Saks Fifth Avenue in New York. Friends say they were buying a gift for a friend.

Now that Julie has curtailed her ties with the Saturday Evening Post, remaining as a consultant, she is expected to try out her considerable talents in the television field.

Both Julie and Tricia are very articulate but during Watergate Julie did most of the talking, becoming her father's chief defender. She also won a lot of applause for her TV appearances and seems to like that media.

Her father also reportedly is very much in favor of Julie trying her wings as a TV personality.

The White House is expected to roll out the red carpet for Emperor Hirohito when he arrives in Washington Oct. 2 for a two-day state visit. Some 240 Japanese correspondents have signed to cover the emperor when he tours the United States.

Ford met Hirohito last fall when he visited Tokyo. Memorable pictures were made of Ford in striped pants that were too short.

Former President Richard M. Nixon met the emperor in Anchorage, Alaska, in September, 1971, when Hirohito made a refueling stop on his way to Europe.

The start of the social season at White House on Dec. 25 begins with a state dinner honoring the president of Columbia.

So far the First Lady has not recruited a replacement for social secretary Nancy Ruwe and there seems to be no rush about filling the position.

Mrs. Ruwe, a highly innovative social secretary who put on some of the most glamorous dinners at the White House, had problems with other members of the household staff.

Mrs. Ruwe's resignation was announced before Mrs. Ford traveled to Vail, Colo. for a summer vacation.

Career professionals, including Pat Howard who has been on the social staff for many years, are expected to carry on.

Don Knotts not about to perform own stunts

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Don Knotts will never join Burt Reynolds, James Caan and Clint Eastwood in that select fraternity of actors who do their own movie stunts.

Don is a prudent — not to say cowardly — actor who makes certain he lives to star another day.

Currently working in his third Disney picture, Don carefully combs each script in advance to see what death-defying feats are expected of him. Disney films are rarely found wanting in blood-chilling action.

"I've never been hurt in a movie because I've never done a stunt," Knotts said contentedly. "When I played Barney Fife in 'The Andy Griffith Show' all those years there was very little physical action."

"The stunts aren't usually included in Disney scripts. They add them later. But it's no sweat for me because I don't do 'em."

"I do spend a lot of time soaked to the skin. Or plastered from head to foot with flour. It's a part of life when you work for Disney."

In "The Apple Dumpling Gang" Don's character plunged from a girder into wet cement. He also was tangled in a broken ladder, fell off a rope, dangled from a roof and tipped on a high ledge.

"It takes days to do all that stunt work," Knotts said. "I get bored but not hurt. I watch the stunt man work and then I walk in for the close-up."

"Sometimes they get me to do part of a stunt, like walking to the edge of a cliff or something. But then they send for the stuntman."

"In 'Gus' — it's about a field-goal kicking mule — I was lucky. There were no stunts for my character. I played a football coach, but I was in danger of being run over by the players."

In "No Deposit, No Return," in which he costars with David Niven, Knotts spends many days beyond camera range watching his stunt men — a fearless pair named Alex Plassehaert and Jerry Brutsch — risk their necks.

"They don't pay me enough to do dangerous stunts. Cowardice has nothing to do with it. I just don't want to ruin my stage career," he said.

When Knotts isn't side-stepping peril he gets his kicks touring in theatrical productions of "The Odd Couple," "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" and "The Mind With the Dirty Man."

Knotts has established his timid, born loser character as firmly as such great oldtimers as Chaplin, Langdon and Keaton. He is among the most identifiable characters in comedy history.

Knotts invariably plays a man on the verge of a nervous breakdown in movie and television roles. Yet on stage he escapes that image to play wider ranging parts.

In reality Knotts bears little resemblance to his palsied, chicken-livered film image. He is, in fact a calm and placid soul who takes his comedy as seriously as any of the giants of yesterday.

While he likes to depart from the quavering wretch, he has no deep yearning to play "Hamlet." He will, however, head for London this fall to discuss starting in some English theatrical productions.

Don thinks audiences like his uptight character because they either identify with him or feel superior to the eternal loser.

"When I play in golf tournaments and get off a good shot, the gallery really gives me a cheer," he said. "And I like that."

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Not too much planetary help here. In general, it would be better to stick to routine matters. Perhaps, too, to take a little time to make some long-range plans.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Consider new methods and techniques, but don't over-reach your capacities. Neither be overanxious. Impress others with your poise and good judgment.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Stellar influences now warn against indiscretion, unconventionality. Stress the conservative — especially if dealing with superiors or strangers.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Best results will accrue from working with those who have know-how and inspiration to offer. Solo ventures may not be as successful.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — This should be a fruitful day, when some of your more vigorous efforts could bring unexpected rewards and recognition. Romance also favored.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — With your innate ingenuity, you will probably discover more than one novel way of meeting day's demands. Others are competing for identical goals. Push on!

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — You may run into some unexpected situations. Be resolute in your own interest, but bend if the occasion warrants and principles are not jeopardized.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Don't let your enthusiasm get the better of you. Look into all suggestions carefully. Do not accept merely because they "sound good."

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Jupiter influences now stimulate the imagination and a spirit of adventure. You can make this a big day if you will go all out in effort.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — You may face some resistance, obstacles you had not anticipated, but you can find ways to skirt them. Mostly, it will depend upon your perception and good reasoning.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Look below the surface for leads which will help you to solve problems, get ahead faster in your occupation. Creative pursuits are highly favored.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Especially favored now: maritime interests, scholastic matters, research, all pursuits which stimulate the intellect.

YOU BORN TODAY are intellectually inclined, affable by nature and a born producer. You have a strong drive and, if you choose business as a career, would make an outstanding success in banking manufacturing, railroad enterprises or promotion. But you are extremely versatile, and may fit yourself for a career in the theater.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Dble 4 ♦ Pass
5 ♠ 5 ♣ Pass 5 ♥ Pass
6 ♦ Dble Pass Pass
Redble

Opening lead — King of clubs.
I was playing with Sam Fry, Jr., in the Reisinger team of four championship many years ago when this extraordinary deal occurred.

The bidding was unusual, to say the least. Fry opened one diamond. Presumably his purpose was to learn whether I had diamond support, in which case he could better judge how high to go in spades, where he planned to play the hand.

West doubled and I jump-raised to four diamonds. This dreadful overbid was traceable in part to the favorable vulnerability, and in part to the exuberance and impetuosity of youth.

Fry now bid his real suit, spades, and West tried five clubs. East bid five hearts, for reasons impossible to explain even at this late date, and Fry rebid his spades.

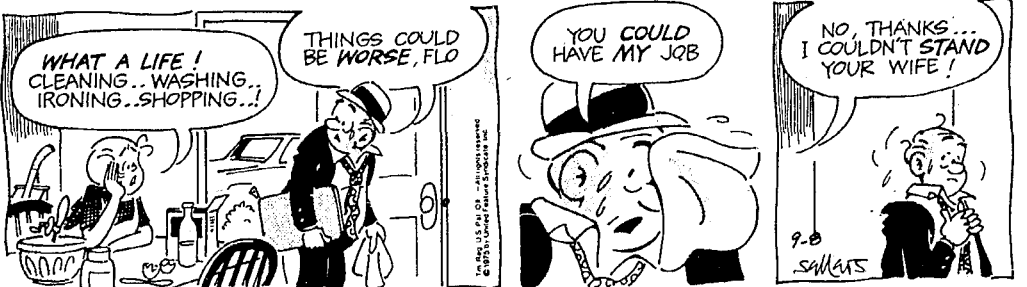

Undaunted, West bid six clubs. When this rolled around to Fry, he reverted to diamonds. He thought there might be a spade loser (Fry didn't know I had the queen) if spades were trumps. West doubled and Fry thereupon redoubled!

West led the king of clubs. Fry ruffed and played the eight of diamonds. When West followed low, dummy did likewise. Another diamond lead put West out of commission. He could take his ace of diamonds but nothing else. So Fry made six diamonds redoubled for 1,330 points, despite West's 21 high card points!

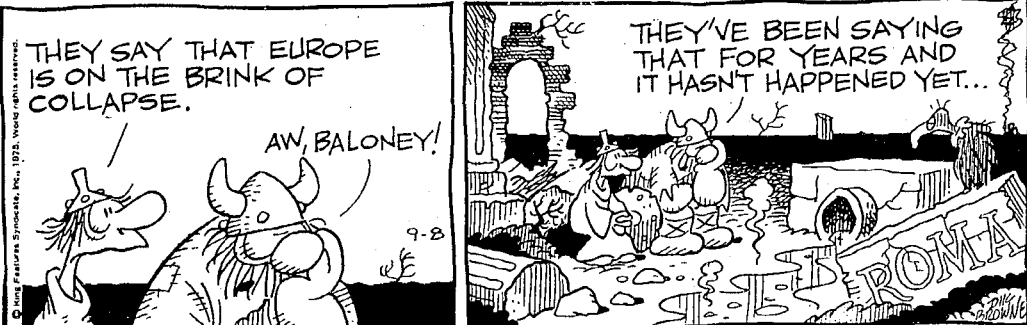

West could have stopped the slam with the king of hearts lead, but this thought probably never occurred to him. It seemed highly unlikely that the "safe" lead of the king of clubs could give declarer the contract, but, as it turned out, West could not have been more mistaken.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Voice of Broadway . . . Ed Lavin died happily. He was aboard the QE2 and we discovered him the first dinner time in the Queen's Grill, the most posh dining room of this marvelously comfortable way to travel to Europe. Ed was 85, a bachelor, who hadn't spent his life avoiding the ladies: "I never married simply because when I had the girl I didn't have money; and when I had the money, I didn't have The Girl," Ed sighed our first night out.

Ed was a retired stockbroker, rich from having money. He piled it up in far more solvent times, outwitted the Dow-Jones, lived without yachts but with luxury; always luxury. He dined in the finest Manhattan restaurants, honed his palate to so exquisite a gourmet instrument that he wrote many magazine pieces on fine foods, grew tired more of the writing. ("It only made me hungry at inappropriate times," the elegant old glutton told us) than the food. Once the greatest restaurateur in the history of New York taste-buds, Henri Soule of the immortal Le Pavillon, gave Ed his highest, most trusting assignment. "I want you to go to La Grenouille," M. Soule assigned, Ed, "and let me know how it compares with my restaurant." La Grenouille had opened then-recently and by word of famished mouth had become an Instant Success in the middle of a 114-day New York newspaper blackout; and proved betimes the antique wheeze that you can't keep people away from fine food, however distantly situated; and La Grenouille was located across E. 52nd St. from anier establishment rich in connoisseurship, Cartier's jewelry emporium.

M. Soule told Ed price was no object, he wished simply objective analyses of every facet of the operation of La Grenouille, translated: the Frog. Done and done, Ed agreed.

In his eighties, few of Ed's friends remained; perhaps his last male pal was Ed Fitzgerald of radio and equally selective gustatorial fame, one year younger. His final gently rejected lady was rich and died, naming Ed Lavin her executor which assigned some $100,000 a year in fees atop his tidy fortune set aside for the rocking chair years.

It was, Ed confided that first night out from New York his 256th Atlantic crossing. He had sailed on every major Cunard liner for more than 60 years. "When I was a young broker I crossed at least six times a year, sometimes eight or ten," he told us. "I liked Cunard best. The French Line was fine but a trifle too self-consciously a carnival sideshow about its food. They flamed everything and I suppose it didn't hurt the food much but for anyone who knows food it was a plain lowering of standards. It's fine to set fire to a crepes Suzette that would lay any sensitive human low anyway, and a cherries jubilee is an entertainment for the nouveau riche but murder on the cherries.

"The old German ships were all right for a few prewar years — the Kaiser's war, of course — but they never really came back. The Swedish ships had fine peasant food and rarely did themselves a disservice by trying to add a Ziegfeld flash. You met good solid businessmen on the Kungsholm and Gripsholm, and fat German cliches on the Europa. But Cunard always remained the class of the Atlantic. Why, you even met a better class of card sharps on the Mauritania, the Aquitania and the old Queen Mary — which was my alltime favorite anyway."

Ed had reserved a small table just inside the entrance to the stylish Queen's Grill on his July sailing, a vantagepoint where each visitor would not notice him unless he doglegged to the right as he entered, and Ed could see and remain undisturbed if his sense of caste rejected any; or call a polite hello if in the mood for elegant friendliness. Ed dropped over to our table for coffee after his first QE2 dinner, recited his relief that the QE2 of all the huge modern liners had prevailed, its food continually splendid, its service satisfactory to his lifetime-sharpened demands, all well in his hyper-luxurious world.

And so Ed summoned one of the many ladies, a wrong girl at the wrong time, but always as elegant as the Lavin aspect, demeanor and tailoring, for Ed's closets were as finickily exquisite as his taste-buds. His lavish evening finished, he reported back to M. Soule, who cut through Ed's diplomatic small talk to demand the unsauced truth: how good was the food at La Grenouille?

"Better than yours," Ed stated with fearful honesty. M. Soule did not flinch. "It should be," he sighed. "It took my three top men from my kitchen."

Indeed, Ed died happy. Here was a gentleman of a departed school, from which he rated a doctorate with lettuce clusters. He traveled the world: Vienna was his favorite city, not Paris, although he wallowed in the fine comestibles served in such splendid Parisian temples as Au Grand Vefour; he considered Maxim's a well-seasoned gourmet Disneyland, a cathedral of social ambitions with alpenstocks not even checked at the door; the Tour D'argent? "Tourists, tourists!" Ed recoiled. "They served Nazis during the war!"

Lost mom's trust

By Jean Adams

CAUGHT: (Q.) I did an awful thing and broke Mother's and my heart. One night my parents went out. My boy friend came over. He wanted to have sexual intercourse. I always say no, but this time I said I'd try it. As we were getting ready my mother came in and caught us.

She has lost her trust in me. She says she is going to put me on birth control pills. I cry every night. I want her trust back so bad. All I need is another chance. I'll never do anything like that again.

Determined in Pennsylvania (A.) Tell your mother everything that happened. And also what didn't happen. Tell her that was the one and only time and birth control pills would be a waste. She may have doubts for a while, but as you live up to your pledge to yourself and to her (I am sure you will), she will be convinced that you mean it. Her heart will mend, and so will yours.

SISTERS: (Q.) I am infatuated with two girls. One is a sophomore, the other is a junior. They are sisters. I spend more time with the junior, but feel just as strongly for the sophomore.

If I should decide which to ask out, I would like to keep the same relationship with the other as I had before. However, I am afraid this might cause friction. Help! — 16 in Mississippi

(A.) If you have in mind having two girl friends who are sisters — one dating and one nondating — forget it. Choose one and date her and be her boy friend. Be friendly with the other, but no girl friend-boy friend stuff.

Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of The Pocono Record, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas, 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal answers.

Artificial insemination

My husband and I have finally acknowledged that we are a non-fertile couple. Artificial insemination has been suggested because I seem to be free of any problem that would prevent me from becoming pregnant. Is there any literature on this subject?

Mrs. G.R., Del.

Dear Mrs. R.: Before embarking on this very complicated project you should inquire and read about the psychological and legal implications of artificial insemination.

There is a vast amount of literature in medical, psychological and legal journals that will enlighten you about this highly sensitive undertaking. Since your husband is not fertile, it would be necessary to seek donor sperm which then would be introduced in you by your own physician.

It is obvious that moral and legalistic problems may ensue. To avoid future unhappiness, the detailed discussions should take place between both of you, your doctor and even a psychiatrist.

Far too many people have found that their initial enthusiasm was marred by subsequent problems that were not anticipated.

I have been told that my hoarseness is due to a "contact ulcer." It isn't clear to me.

Jr. J.E., Vt.

Dear Mr. E.:

You are probably confused by the name. This does not mean that your hoarseness is due to something or someone that you have been in contact with.

It is a technical term which indicates an ulceration of the tissue of a part of the vocal cords.

Almost always, contact ulcers occur in men, especially those who shout and explosively make their feelings known with emotional outbursts.

Chronic irritation of the vocal cords occurs, and the swelling that results is responsible for persistent hoarseness.

Vocal rest, the use of steam and a change in speaking habits can almost always reverse and cure the contact ulcer of the larynx.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "Alcoholism — A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers helpful advice. For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., Alcoholism booklet, P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. Please mention the booklet by title.

Potatoes: The Old Stand-By

Potatoes are available in three basic varieties; new potatoes for boiling, general purpose potatoes, and baking potatoes. They may be long, round, or somewhere in between and may be a "white", "red", or "Russet" color classification. To obtain quality potatoes, which will last longest at home, look for smooth, firm, well-shaped varieties with few or no eyes. Avoid potatoes with sprouts or green spots. Green spots are caused by exposure to natural or artificial light and give the vegetable a bitter flavor.

Quality doesn't end in the selection. Potatoes bruise easily, so handle them carefully at home. Proper storage is the key to keeping general purpose and baking potatoes several months after purchase and "new" potatoes for several weeks. Since dampness increases the rate of decay, store them unwashed in a cool, dark well-ventilated area.

News for the diet-conscious! One medium-sized potato contains less than 100 calories.

People buy complete sets of Funk & Wagnalls encyclopedias for lots of reasons. But the number one reason is Volume 1.

With Funk & Wagnalls, you can pick up the first volume for just 49¢, and let it convince you to buy the rest of the set, a volume or two a week.

You don't buy a full set all at once, so we make every volume good enough to keep you coming back for more.

The Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia contains 183,000 indexed subjects. It has over 7,000 illustrations—including a full-color World Atlas.

It's bound in sturdy, elegant covers.

It's written in clear, simple English. (The Funk & Wagnalls is a family encyclopedia, designed to help students, not stump them.)

And Funk & Wagnalls publishes annual yearbooks to keep your set up-to-date.

Read what Saturday Review says about the Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia:

"Can a good encyclopedia be bought in a supermarket? Decidedly, if it's the handy-sized Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia... the number of illustrations and maps (more than seven thousand) are remarkable achievements, especially when you consider the bargain price."

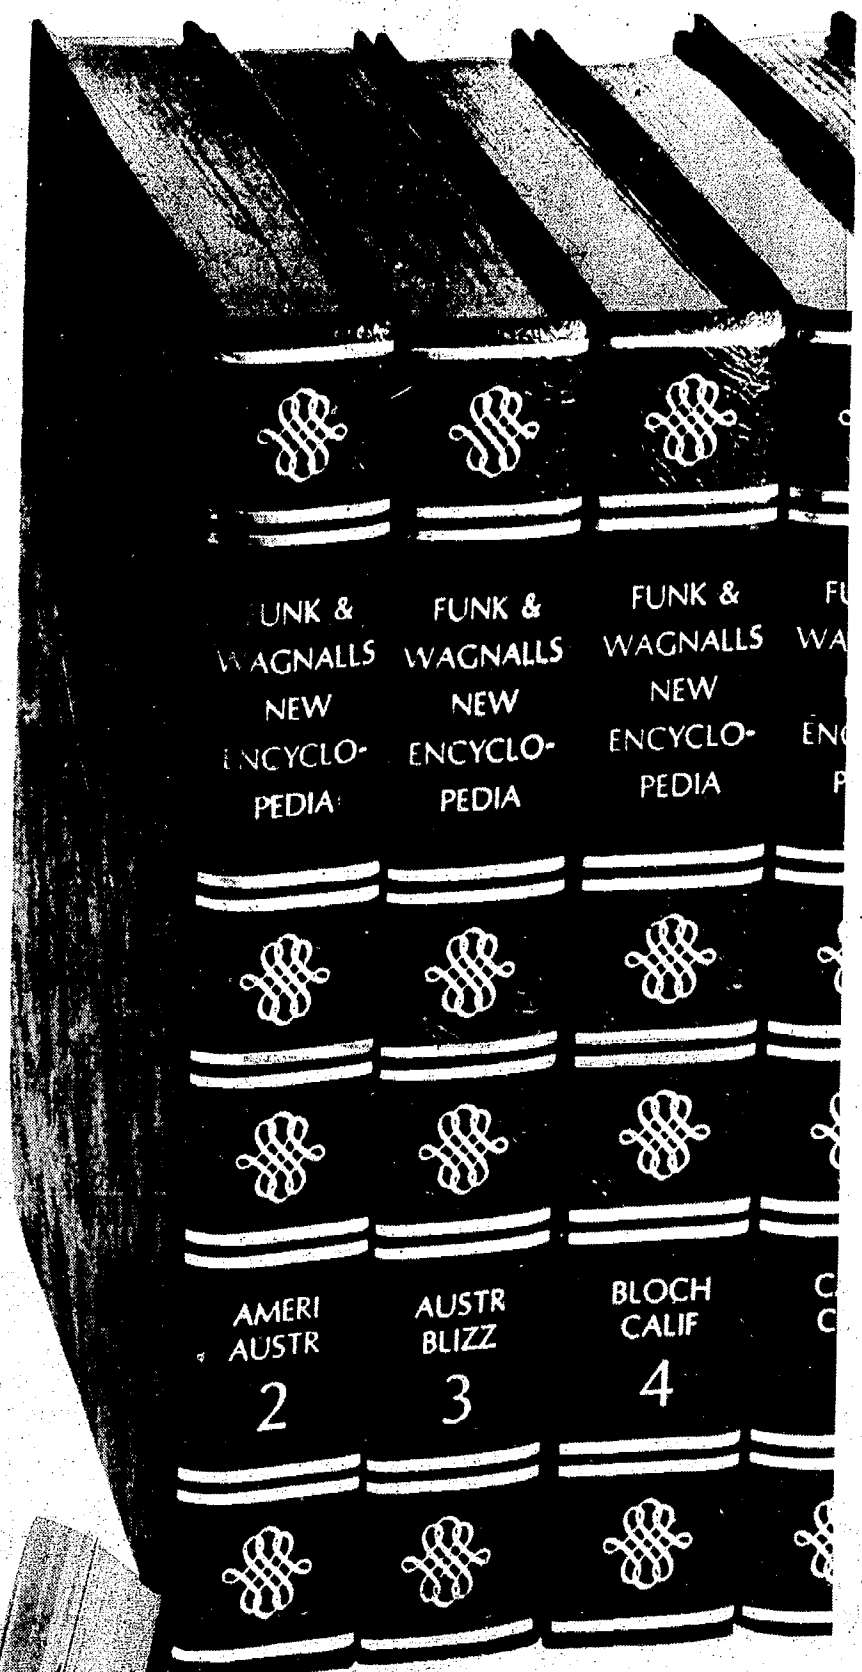

—Saturday Review of Literature

One thing you don't get with Funk & Wagnalls is a salesman. It's sold direct to you through supermarkets. And no salesman could convince you the way you can convince you.

Buy Volume 1 of Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia now at our supermarkets. Invest 49¢ and check it out. Instead of investing a lot in a set of encyclopedias someone says is terrific, invest a little and decide for yourself.
